SEVEN U. S. WARSHIPS ON ROCKS; 23 ARE DEAD

FIVE INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASHES HERE

Two Collisions on Trunk Line Highways Near the City Place Several in the Hospital

MRS. EDWARD LE JEUNE IS MOST SERIOUSLY INJURED

Intoxicated Driver of Other Car Given Jail Sentence by Judge Brindley

Two bad automobile smashups in which five persons were injured and four cars damaged, occurred on country roads near La Crosse Sunday. In another accident, near Milwaukee, a former La Crosse man was seriously injured.

One woman was seriously injured, and another woman and two men were badly cut and bruised in an automobile accident that occurred about 2:30 Sunday morning on the Mormon Coulee road near Chicken Tavern. The injured woman is Mrs. Edward Le Jeune, 810 Winnebago street. She is in a local hospital suffering from a broken collarbone, a three inch gash across the face, and numerous cuts and bruises. A fracture of the skull is also suspected, and an X-ray will be taken today. Theodore Rounds, 520 Winnebago street, the driver of the car, sustained numerous body bruises, a badly cut hand, and a bruise on the head. Mr. Le Jeune was badly bruised about the side, and Mrs. Round was also cut and bruised.

Driver Sentenced

Edgar Nelson of Westby, driver of the car that smashed into the Rounds machine, was sentenced to twenty days in the county jail and fined fifty dollars and costs this morning for driving an automobile while intoxicated. In imposing the sentence Judge Brindley said: "A man who drives an automobile while intoxicated is a menace to the community. Any man who comes into my court for an offense like that will get a little time to think the matter over."

Edward Le Jeune and Theodore Rounds, two of the occupants of the other car, stated this morning that they would not prefer other charges against Nelson if he was willing to settle for the accident.

When the two cars came together, Mr. Le Jeune, who was sitting in the front seat, was thrown completely through the windshield with a lunch basket in his hand, and didn't get a scratch. Mr. Rounds came to in the bottom of the car with a half of the steering wheel in each hand. The children in the car, Laura Rounds, and Leona O'son, were between the older people and got out unscathed.

Tells of Crash

The Rounds car was returning from a birthday party at the home of Leo Rush, and was proceeding slowly in

Japanese Disaster Comes Without Warning

TOKIO.—Sept. 7, via Nagoya.—By The Associated Press.—Japan's greatest disaster came like a bolt from the sky. There was no warning, no preliminary rumblings of the earth. A tremendous shock, crashes of brick and mortar and wood—screams and cries of the dying and fear stricken. To add to the instantaneous suffering great fires burst from the quivering ruins.

Frightened thousands who had escaped death and injury in the collapse of buildings crowded to the open places and into structures that apparently were earth-shock proof. Many of them died in the flames that quickly hemmed them in.

Yokohama Hardest Hit

Yokohama, the great Japanese port, received the brunt of the shock and rapidly spreading fires completed its ruin in a comparatively brief space. There the buildings were of such construction that they offered no resistance to the flames.

In Tokio, the collapse of the buildings and spreading fires are striking evidence of the immensity of the disaster. But the real horror was not realized until night, when thousands of refugees wandered through the darkness homeless and hungry.

Leave Goods in streets

To add to the terror, numerous minor earth shocks came during the after noon and evening. With the fast spreading flames menacing the city, thousands of families began a hurried exodus from their homes. Many refugees, who moved their household goods to the streets, were unable to transport them further and were forced to flee. Their most treasured property burned on the pavements, being set alight by myriads of flying sparks.

All the streets quickly filled with refugees who camped out in the open and waited with typical Oriental stoicism for what dire events might next transpire. Food at first seemed to be plentiful. But in only a few hours the hunger-terror came to add to the sufferings. Also water began to grow scarce and soon it was being rationed out.

Little Disorder Evident

In the midst of the holocaust there seemingly was little disorder. The authorities, shocked and stunned as they were, immediately took things in hand and in a short while soldiers augmented the police in patrolling the stricken districts. The hungry thousands were cheered by the announcement that on the morrow there would be rations of rice, as ships of supplies were on their way from Osaka and other ports.

While the prosperous and upper classes suffered alike with those of lower down, in the district of Honjo there was enacted a tragedy which has few equals. Honjo is a district of Tokio so poor and poverty-stricken that there are few to be compared with it in any metropolis of the world. It is hemmed in by Tokio bay on one side and by the Sumida river and canals on the others.

Slums Hemmed in

The little tinder-box houses of Honjo that escaped the earthquake immediately took fire and burned with such rapidity that the majority of the dwellers were unable to escape. Crowded into the small buildings the thousands of unfortunates gasped and died in the flames.

Other districts, while better situated to withstand the shock and fire, were unable to escape altogether and the homes of the rich, in many instances went down in smouldering ruins.

Flames Circle City

At one time, from the American embassy, the city seemed to be encircled by flames. This was virtually the case, although many fires were extinguished with little difficulty.

While the district to the north, which includes the Chinese embassy, seemed to be in flames, so confident was the Chinese ambassador that his building would escape that he invited many fleeing people to take refuge there. However, toward midnight there came a change in the wind and the flames swept the embassy and official residences so rapidly that there was no time to save the records.

Historic Station Burns

In the Kanda district, which is the sudden quarter of Tokio, fire spread with great rapidity. And directly east, where seven miles of shops form the Ueno and Shimbashi districts, the flames seemed to be one great roaring furnace. The Shimbashi railway station, which is the starting point of Tokaido railway, was one of the first destroyed. It was of historic interest having been constructed nearly 50 years ago.

In this district fire burned fiercely along a strip a mile wide. In the district to the south Shiba also took fire and the Red Cross hospital was one of the first to be attacked by the flames. Other buildings were ablaze within a short time.

WORKERS NAMED FOR JAPAN RELIEF DRIVE WEDNESDAY

La Crosse County Prepares to Raise $4,000 in One Day for Sufferers

ONLY CASH ACCEPTABLE IN THIS EMERGENCY CALL

Workers Assigned Small Territory to Finish Quickly

An army of workers was enlisted today in the campaign to raise $4,000 on Wednesday for the relief of the earthquake and fire sufferers in Japan.

Orders were received today from the national headquarters of the Red Cross to press the work with all possible speed and thoroughness as latest reports indicate the disaster covered a large area and the suffering is terrible.

P. J. Yorly, in charge of the local drive, urges all workers to carefully note the territory assigned them and to act promptly, as the territory is small and the time is limited.

The campaign is to be concluded on Wednesday. Workers are requested to hand in reports to Miss Mabel Young, executive secretary, State bank, or at campaign headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce. Only cash will be accepted on this call for aid. Clothing is not wanted. Deferred subscriptions cannot be accepted as relief must be forwarded immediately.

U. S. OFFICIAL IN TOKIO ASKS FUNDS TO FIGHT EPIDEMIC

Ambassador Woods Urges Million be Placed Immediately at Disposal of Relief Body

U. S. FIGURES PLACE DEATH TOLL AT OVER TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND

Appreciation Expressed in Japan at Speedy Help from U. S.

WASHINGTON—Reporting that an epidemic of fever had broken out at Tokio, Ambassador Woods, in a cable to the state department Monday said it was imperative that one million dollars of American Red Cross funds be placed immediately at the disposal of its relief committee in Japan for the quick purchase of medical supplies and food from nearby markets.

200,000 Dead U. S. Figures

New estimates based upon later and more accurate reports now place the number of dead in the Japanese earthquake disaster at between 200,000 and 300,000, with 300,000 to 500,000 injured, according to a joint statement issued today by Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross executive committee, and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Each new report enhances the appalling extent of the catastrophe, according to the Red Cross headquarters statement, and a survey of the needs of the situation has made it necessary to appeal again to Red Cross chapters for redoubled effort to obtain adequate funds.

The number of dead at Yokohama alone is 80,000, according to a radio message to the navy department from Admiral Anderson commander of the Asiatic fleet, on board his flagship, the Huron, which has arrived at Yokohama.

Urge Yanks to Leave

TOKIO—By The Associated Press—Fear of typhoid and other epidemics at Tokio has caused American physicians here to advise their nationals to leave the city unless their business is most urgent. While the water supply is rapidly being brought back to normal, conditions are still far from sanitary.

There is the deepest appreciation throughout Japan for the prompt response from the United States and other countries to the distress of the thousands of refugees. Admiral Anderson of the United States Asiatic fleet is closely cooperating with Admiral Takarabe, minister of marine, in the work of relief. A number of British ships have arrived with food and medicine.

No Cholera in Japan

TOKIO, Via Osaka.—By The Associated Press.—Reports of a threatened epidemic of cholera in the region devastated by the earthquake are unfounded, according to the authorities.

60,000 Bodies Recovered

TOKIO.—By The Associated Press.—Sixty thousand bodies had been recovered in Tokio and Yokohama up to and including Monday, and the police estimate that 500,000 persons have been treated for wounds and sickness as a result of the earthquake. A landing party from the United States destroyer Huron buried the dead from the American naval hospital at Yokohama.

FIREMAN KILLED

ROANOKE, Va.—J. P. Tolley, fireman, of Roanoke, was killed and seven persons were injured when a Norfolk & Western, south-bound freight train left the tracks a few miles north of Roanoke Monday morning and ploughed into a rock quarry, where a number of men were at work.

GRAIN EXPORTS DROP

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Grain exports from the United States last week totaled 6,898,000 bushels as compared to 9,204,000 for the week previous.

PETER J. LARSON, JUST OUT OF JAIL, PASSES BOGUS CHECK

Peter J. Larson, released from the county jail two days ago after serving a sentence of ten days for vagrancy, was arrested at the Hub Cafe Sunday afternoon after attempting to pass a bogus check made out in two different amounts, police reported Monday.

Larson was intoxicated, police said, which attested to the barely legible scrawl of hand writing on the check made out in numerals of $5.80 and written out on the line below to the amount of $5.

What disposition the police will make of the case, Chief Webber was unable to announce Monday. Larson was being held at the station.

DESTROYERS GO AGROUND IN FOG OFF WEST COAST

Mistaken Position in Relation to Coast Line Believed to Have Been Cause of Crash

SHIPS POUNDING TO PIECES SHORT DISTANCE OFF COAST

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—By the Associated Press—Twenty-three sailors dead and fifteen injured; seven destroyers of the Pacific squadron of the battle fleet held fast between rocks off Point Arguello Light in the Pacific ocean between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

These were outstanding consequences Monday of the navy's major marine disaster in Pacific waters. The injured were being nursed at hospitals here; a trainload of survivors was headed for San Diego, the naval base, while the seven ships were fast approaching total wrecks by the pounding of the surf.

The warships went ashore while cruising from San Francisco to San Diego Saturday night shortly after nine o'clock in a dense fog. Mistaken position in relation to the coast line is believed to have caused the crash.

TIDAL WAVE HELD POSSIBLE CAUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The theory was expressed Monday by high naval officials that a tidal wave or other seismic disturbance, reacting from the Japanese earthquake, caused the disaster to destroyer division eleven off California yesterday.

The destroyers were speeding through the fog hugging the shore in single file formation when they piled upon the rocks from 100 to 200 rods apart about 300 yards off shore.

One Destroyer Sinks

The fatalities were divided among two destroyers. Seven were from the Delphy and the others died on the destroyer Young, which turned turtle and sank in one minute and thirty seven seconds.

The other destroyers, the S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Fuller, Chauncey, and Woodbury, went aground in a position which gave their officers and crews a better chance than was afforded the other crews.

The Pacific coast line between San Francisco and San Diego juts into the ocean between Hounda and Point Arguello where the vessels were wrecked.

The naval wrecks came while the destroyer Reno had left the cruising line, attracted by open boat loads of survivors from the wrecked steamship Cuba, a passenger vessel. The Cuba went ashore off San Miguel island, twelve hours before and its survivors were picked up by the Reno, except one boat load.

Cuba's Survivors Rescued

The remaining boat was picked up by the Standard Oil tanker W. H. Miller, in the Santa Barbara channel, while its occupants were rowing out to sea in a dense fog, under the impression they were headed for shore. The Miller will reach San Francisco Monday. The Reno landed its survivors at San Pedro Sunday night.

Reports indicated that all on the Cuba were saved except Captain C. J. Holland, the purser, and eight members of the crew who were reported to have remained on board to guard a shipment of bullion. Sunday night it was reported the Cuba parted and sank. Whether the captain and his associates foresaw the end of their craft and paddled to San Miguel island in an open boat, or whether they were caught unawares was an unanswered question.

The Cuba was bound from South American to San Francisco. Her wireless was crippled and had a calling radius of only one mile.

Tugs Standing By

With a heavy sea running, the tugs Partridge and Sansma are standing by the smashed and twisted wreckage of seven destroyers.

The destroyers of the flotilla, which were not wrecked, have left for San Diego with part of the crews of the stranded craft, while others have been

SCIENTISTS TODAY WATCHING ECLIPSE OF SUN IN WEST

Eclipse Expeditions Come from Every Quarter of Globe to Photograph Phenomenon

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Clouds obscured the sky over Los Angeles at 11:29 a. m., and frustrated efforts of thousands of observers here to glimpse the first phase of the solar eclipse which commenced at that time.

A few moments later, however, the sun emerged and watchers were rewarded with the sight of a thin, crescent shaped "bite" already taken out of the brilliant disc of the sun by the advancing moon.

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—By The Associated Press.—When the sun rose over Southern California Monday it faced a barrage of scientific and popular investigation unprecedented in astronomical history.

Eclipse expeditions from every quarter of the globe awaited its appearance in the path of totality marked out for Monday's eclipse, the first total obscuration of the sun visible in the United States since 1918 and the last until 1925. Batteries of special cameras, spectroscopes, interometers and other instruments were aimed at the heavens, while overhead circled airplanes of the United States battle fleet engaged in an historic attempt to photograph the on-rushing shadow of the moon from vantage points miles above the sea.

Radio, too, was playing its first great role in the observation by spreading an invisible net of communication over the predicted path of the moon's shadow, linking together the camps established by American and foreign observatories on Santa Catalina and San Clements islands, off Los Angeles, Ensenada and at San Diego and other American ports.

Newspapermen prepared to flash the path of the eclipse to their readers from its beginning, 11:20 a. m. on Santa Catalina island, to the final phase of obscuration at 2:18 p. m., while motion picture camera men stood ready to film the solar phenomenon. Highways leading to Santa Barbara, San Diego and other points within the totality belt and steamers plying between the mainland and Santa Catalina island were crowded with eclipse excursionists and army of non-technical observers carrying fragments of smoked glass.

Early today astronomers at Mount Wilson observatory trained their powerful instruments on the sun for preliminary observations, results of which were to be telephoned to K. H. J., the radio broadcasting station of the Los Angeles Times, through which they were to be broadcast to the astronomical expeditions awaiting this data.

STATE PRESSMEN WANT TECHNICAL SCHOOLS STARTED

Praises Inter-church Movement for Eight-hour Day for Steel Workers

ANNUAL CONVENTION HELD IN LA CROSSE ON SUNDAY

Edward C. Bey is Re-elected President of Organization

EDWARD C. Bey of La Crosse, Tribune pressman, was re-elected president of the Wisconsin organization of the International Pressman's Union at the annual state convention held at Eagle's hall on Sunday. The convention was an all-day meeting with sixty delegates in attendance, representing every local in the state, and it came to an end with a banquet in the evening, at which the La Crosse local was host.

Praise Hospitality

The convention was declared to be the most successful and enjoyable meeting the union has so far held in Wisconsin, and resolutions were adopted praising the hospitality of the reception the delegates received.

Neenah-Menasha was awarded the 1924 convention, to be held next August.

Officers elected besides the president were George Skinkle, Milwaukee, vice president, and E. S. Latondress, Menasha, secretary.

Mayor J. J. Verchota delivered the address of welcome to the convention at its opening session Sunday morning, and D. S. Greig, advertising manager of the Tribune gave a talk on the relations between the pressmen and newspaper employers, on behalf of the Inland Daily Press association. Herman Burgehardt, organizer of the Trades and Labor council, was a speaker, and the international union was represented on the program by International Vice President John M. Brophy, and by International Representative Joseph F. Byrne.

Back Up Churches

A feature of the convention was the adoption of a resolution strongly praising the Inter-Church Movement for its work on behalf of an eight-hour day in the steel industry, which has now been put into effect. In the discussion of this subject it was declared to be the consensus of the pressmen that their members should affiliate with the churches and actively engage in their civic and religious undertakings. The resolution adopted on the subject is as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED: By the State Conference of Pressroom Workers of Wisconsin in convention assembled on this 9th day of September, 1923, that we give our most hearty wellwishes to the Inter-Church Movement for their manifest interests of traditional American living conditions by their exposure of the conditions existing in the steel industry of this country, where those employed were compelled to work twelve hours a day for seven days a week in order to have their families exist. Be it further

"RESOLVED, That this expression of welfare for the bread winners of North America by the Inter-Church Movement has touched the hearts of the members of our craft to such an extent that we feel free to express our opinion that the day is near at hand when the softening hand of the Christian faith will find many workers within their ranks that heretofore have held aloof, and be it further

"RESOLVED, That we believe that the final hopes of all traditional American life will best be conserved through adherence to the cause of the church and its teachings for the better living of all. We therefore recommend the thoughtful consideration of our membership to join forces with the leaders of Christianity in their respective communities to the end that all that is good may be ours."

Contribute to Chapel

The convention voted $150 as a contribution to the memorial chapel which is to be built at Pressman's Home, Tenn., in honor of the members of the union who gave their lives in the world war.

Plans for inaugurating technical schools to develop pressmen in their trade were laid at the session. It is

JAPANESE BONDS STAND UP WELL DESPITE SMASH

Earthquake Disaster Fails to Shake Credit of Island Empire in U. S.

BY BYRON SELLER
(Special Correspondent to the Tribune)

NEW YORK.—Discussion as to the future of the security markets last week has centered around the probable effect of the Japanese disaster upon trade and finance.

There are two widely varying opinions. One is that the demand for material to reconstruct the devastated areas will stimulate trade. Emphasis is placed especially upon the large requirements for steel. In line with this argument there was moderate speculation for the rise in steel stocks. The other view is that the enormous destruction of capital will make such extensive drafts upon the money market as greatly to disturb the financial equilibrium. The effect upon the market of the San Francisco disaster is recalled.

British Are Hit

But the case is somewhat different from that of San Francisco. Then American insurance companies suffered heavy losses. Now it is the British that will probably be most affected and as to the British companies their losses will depend upon what restrictions as to damages by earthquakes were written into the policies. If the insurance companies either in England or America are forced to market large amounts of securities it will necessarily cause some depression.

It also seems probable that the Japanese also will be forced to float a loan either in New York or in London. That such a loan would be readily taken no one doubts. The Japanese credit stands very high. Since the disaster the two Japanese sterling 4½ per cent loans traded in on this market are only about two points below the high of the year. That, of course, is a good deal in the case of bonds with such short maturities, both issues falling due in 1925. The sterling 4's of 1931, the other issue listed on the New York stock exchange, suffered a greater loss and naturally the obligations of the city of Tokio, which was the center of the region effected, had a very sharp decline.

New Financing Due

Investment buying has been at a standstill but that has been the case for a long time. There is a large amount of new financing scheduled for the autumn months, the reception of which will be a better demonstration of investment sentiment than the day to day fluctuations in stocks or bonds. Most of this financing has been held back until after the vacation season.

It looks now as though a good deal would be still further delayed. The new Union Pacific refunding 4's were well received, but a bond of this grade appeals only to institutions and trustees. The real test will come when securities yielding 5½ to 6½ per cent are offered in any large volume.

Railroads Sluggish

Another very important consideration is the attitude of the investing public toward railroad securities. The ideal railroad financing from the standpoint of the road would be the sale of common stock but this looks like an impossible achievement under present conditions. Very few roads could even market preferred stock. The problem of restoring railroad credit is one of the most difficult that faces either the executives or the bankers.

That record breaking car loadings will not suffice is evident from the action of the market for railroad stocks. Sentiment toward these securities is a little more favorable this week than for some time but still leaves much to be desired. When the shares of such prosperous roads as the New York Central and the Union Pacific are selling to return 7 per cent and more, while those of a road like the Pere Marquette yields 9 per cent on the investment it is quite evident that railroad stocks have fallen from the high state they held before excessive government regulation become a standing menace.

HARDEN PRESENTS MUSSOLINI AS HARD-BOILED IMPERIALIST IN PICKING FIGHT WITH GREECE

BERLIN. — Five years after the Great War, which was to place right above might and establish the self-determination of small nations, Europe beholds a policy of conscienceless Caesarism arise in all its hideous nakedness.

The Vienna ultimatum of 1914 was the work of diplomats who falsely pictured the murder of the Austrian heir apparent as an act deliberately planned by the kingdom of Serbia. But Baron Mussulin, who was one of the authors of that ill-fated document, is outdone by Signor Benito Mussolini. For the ultimatum of this blacksmith's son and dictator reached Athens before it could possibly have been learned by whom and in what circumstances, the Italian military mission on the Albanian border had been murdered.

A New Theory

Even if the murderers had been Greeks, how could far-off Athens have hindered their deed? Austria, a pillar of reaction, never even thought of trying to hold Italy responsible for Oberdank, the Trieste irredentist, who planned to kill Emperor Franz Joseph, nor for the anarchist, Luckheni, who killed Kaiserin Elizabeth. This method of approach was reserved for Mussulin in 1914. And now Mussolini picks just that method as his pattern. He, who, as a radical socialist, a few years ago defended in his newspapers, the right to commit acts of political violence, now holds Greece responsible for the murders at Pogo Nyani.

The Greek government has little claim for sympathy ordinarily, but it would be mad if it risked armed conflict with powerful Italy. Greece has offered every reparation consonant with the dignity of an independent state and an agreement could have been reached at a short conference. But the Roman dictator will not abate his demands by one jot. He will neither negotiate nor recognize the authority of the League of Nations, of which both states are members. He bombards and occupies Corfu, and declares this is not an act of war. May the devil take such subtleties!

League Must Act

The League of Nations will lose respect if it permits itself to be shoved aside simply because France is unwilling to take sides against Italy during her own occupation of the Ruhr.

Mussolini has armed Italy's best youth and, at their head, has imposed his will on a quiet king, a discredited parliament, and a nation wearied by war. He deserves praise for having re-accustomed the people and the officials to industry and punctuality, even though he accomplished it by force. But he could not work the wonder hoped for—quick restoration of Italy to world power and wealth. So now, in order to anticipate the danger that lies in the people's disappointment, the dictator seeks to reconcile the Popedom, whose true servant this socialist-atheist declares himself to be, with the "church robbers" of Savoy; to force Jugo-Slavia out of Fiume; to feed fat the ancient grudge against Hellas, now defeated and powerless, and to create an "affair of honor" which shall insure him the sympathy of the world chauvinists.

True Beauty
Is impossible to those who leave film on teeth

Prettier teeth form one great beauty item. And millions now enjoy them. Every day they are combating the dingy coats of film.

This offers you a ten-day test of the method they employ. It is used by dainty people of some 50 nations now. And you will always use it when you once see what it does.

That cloudy film

The clouds on teeth are due to film — that viscous film you feel. Much of it clings and stays on teeth under old-way brushing.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats which hide the luster of the teeth.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Hardly one in fifty, in the old days, escaped these film-caused troubles.

New-day methods

Dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring. Those methods were proved effective by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now that tooth paste is in world-wide use, largely by dental advice. Wherever you go you see the benefits it brings.

Natural ways

Pepsodent acts in natural, gentle ways. Its effects do not come from harsh grit.

Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. One is to neutralize mouth acids, the other to digest starch deposits. These great natural tooth-protecting agents gain manifold power from each use.

Pepsodent will bring you a new conception of what clean teeth mean. Send for this 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

Do this for your own sake and your family's sake. Cut out the coupon now.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Inevitable

IN its weak-kneed evasion of responsibility the League of Nations presents a poor spectacle, and to some measures justifies its adverse critics—those who have always said it would not work. That those who said it would not work first pulled its teeth, themselves, makes no difference with the argument so far as they are concerned. That their assertion that it has no backbone begs the question, because they deprived it of a backbone when they withheld from it the world's backbone which is Uncle Sam, probably does not weigh in their considerations, any more than does the fact that their opposition induced a new and weaker world attitude toward Article X, the enforcing clause.

Nevertheless, even a weak and vacillating League of Nations has demonstrated its importance, and may do more. Had there been no League of Nations Italy would have seized such Greek territory as it desired and held it for permanent occupancy. There is no doubt of this. Italy's attitude has been modulated by the somewhat puny shadow of a league which it has defied, but because of which it has limited its military action. Should the peace of Europe be saved, the fact must be credited to the League of Nations, with all its failure to properly interpret its own significance in human affairs.

And had America been in the league, and had Article X been there with its original police power, does anyone think that even for a moment Italy would have defied it? No!

Wilson and Taft understand and approve. Mr. Hughes' attitude is reflected in that of the late President Harding. Even while he dare not disclose his purposes, Harding had come to that point of view and set his heels for the fight. Coolidge will see it. Once started, war is as relentless and unquenchable as the quake which destroyed Japan. As nations, we must not start war. As a world, we must stop war.

This, or war will stop us.

Political Modesty

SENATOR Irvine L. Lenroot has been making speeches in the midwest for the past thirty days. Even the newspapers most intimately associated with him have received no advance notice. The papers have had what the correspondents in the various cities felt the matter worth, which usually amounted to "a good story." He is now engaged in filling dates in Wisconsin, all of them special invitations, and some of them long deferred in the acceptance. As was the case in other states the public knows of his doings only as reporters see fit to recount them.

While this deserves to be stamped as "poor politics," one respects the modesty of it. Senator Lenroot has never been an advertiser. Where people want to hear him talk—and the requests are numerous to have taken him to all of America's metropolitan cities—he has gone and talked apparently without any thought of how the public would take it in case they had a chance to take it at all. This is characteristic of many men who speak from conviction and are not influenced by passing currents of prejudice or whim. One smiles to think of how much a clamor and to-do Hiram Johnson would have heralded a solid month of speaking. There are a few of these men who work prodigiously, speak indifferently and modestly, meet reporters respectfully, but indifferently, and leave the rest to history.

President Coolidge is of this type. He speaks seldom, always with great modesty, and always reluctantly. Probably he takes it a little too far, for there is in the spoken speech something of that report to the public which is owed by a public servant. Senator Lenroot speaks when it appears to him something of a duty or a substantial courtesy. President Coolidge has less of a sense of obligation relating to public utterances which impels Lenroot at times to break his industrial silence with a few comments. One may be interested in the following story told of the president:

Shortly after being elected, Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, received an invitation to speak at a certain public gathering. In replying he sent the following telegram—"Don't make speeches. People don't like 'em. Won't come. (Signed) Cal."

The Earth's Ends

THE world has been rocked by one of the great human disasters of all time. Everywhere in America action has turned to the relief of Japanese distress. Perhaps the point has significance at this moment. When the relationships between peoples are being tested for the setting up of new standards, approximately 150,000 people are dead, to say nothing of the maimed, the mad and the starving. It is indeed a catastrophe. It is nature's ruin, not man's.

And how poorly as a major horror does nature's worst compare with man's onslaught upon himself as exemplified by war. The holocaust at Tokio and Yokohama, with its toll of probably no more than 200,000 dead, is comparable with a single battle in the world war, the aggregate of whose death list is some exactly unknown figure in the vicinity of 15,000,000. At her most ferocious Nature does not compare with the brute, man, in devising terrors.

In America all attention centers on relief of Japan from the destructive forces of nature. In Europe, inspired by resentment of an atrocious deed, Italy violates a plain international pledge, at least in spirit, from motives in which greed may be not unassociated with revenge, and again jeopardizes world peace in a situation strikingly similar to that which set the world afire in 1914.

Between civilized nations there exists few sources of disagreement more difficult to manage than those that lie between Japan and America, for they touch national pride to the quick. Japan's great misfortune may be more than offset by general benefits to humanity. The Japanese will be slow to insist that America's succoring hand across the sea shall again turn to the sword. For generations they will appreciate the humanity that inspires the American people.

One wonders whether even so "hard-boiled" a ruler as Mussolini will not be impressed by the parallel between the two ends of the earth today—friendship and mercy in time of need on the one hand, hate and acquisitiveness drawing the sword on the other. Good and Evil stalk through the world, always in conflict. Good wins in the Pacific—will Evil triumph in the Adriatic?

Tom Sims Says:

Poor kinfolks are improvident relations who want to borrow money and refuse your advice.

Bosses are people who don't know as much as you and hold their jobs by handshaking.

Neighbors are people living near you who had better 'tend to their own business.

Friends are people who will listen to your troubles if you will let them tell theirs.

So Mote It Be

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH-WILLIAMS

"Poppy! Poppy! Ought to be your name—you're so red at the top," Joyce commented cruelly, after a long appraising stare at the new member of the family. She felt justified, loving beauty as she did. The girl was uncomely, lathy in shape, with pale freckled skin and eyes red-rimmed till their color was uncertain. Her black frock, coarse and ill-fitting, emphasized the redness of her untidy mop of hair. She had swayed slightly at Joyce's speech, half turned to the open window, her eyes suddenly desperate, then checked herself, and said tremulously: "Please don't mind my looks—no more than I do. Please, also, tell me what I am to do!"

"Anything I say," Joyce flung back flippantly. "Father won't have it that you're to be my maid—but I have the last say—so you hear when I speak—and be quick in minding."

"I shall try," the newcomer said still more tremulously, turning so the hard north light fell full across her meager face. The meagerness struck a faint spark compassionate from the flint of Joyce.

"Why, you look as though you hadn't had enough to eat in a year!" she said. "Go down to the kitchen and tell Liza I say to feed you—well."

Dully the girl, Janet Leeds, obeyed. But she did not eat—she could not. The hot, richly scented kitchen sickened her—its aroma of luxurious plenty brought back her heartache keener than ever. If only some measure of its plenty could have been spared to her dead! She had not minded the pinching for herself—but to see her father turn away from the best she could provide, and know him craving better, had been a knife in her heart.

He had had no real claim on the rich Bells—his first wife, dead this twenty-odd years, had been Major Bell's sister, but the major had not approved the match, so quickly lost touch with the husband she had left. In a year he had married. Janet's mother, through pity rather than love, yet had been reasonably happy with her because she gave him a child.

She also had died when Janet was coming to thirteen—after that father and daughter had been everything to each other, until the strength of his love for her had wrought their undoing.

It had led him to risk, at last to lose, the modest savings put by for a rainy day. On the heels of loss had come fatal lingering illness. How she had kept him from starving in the course of it, was still a marvel to the girl. She had not had the least thought of asking help—certainly not from the Bells, but chance willed it otherwise. The doctor wrote to the major of how she was left, and the gallant fight she had made—so his conscience and a heart naturally good and generous had made him offer her a home.

In a daze she had accepted the offer—being too worn and spent just then for longer struggle. Scant remnants of insurance had paid for the funeral, the cheap black frock, the fare to Bellwood.

She owed no living soul a penny—and had just $2 in her thin purse. But until she had heard Joyce's speech she had not understood what lay ahead. Servitude was not so galling—it was the crudeness, the underbredness of her prospective mistress.

The kitchen looked out on a thrifty garden full of sunlight, with hardy flowers bordering its plots. Janet crept into it—she craved sunshine more than food, after the hours she had spent in Madame Vine's workrooms, where sunlight was not admitted.

It confused color-tones in the fine embroideries wrought there. But for her work, she could not have kept the poor home. It had told on her even as had grief and watching. Out in the blessed shining she stood stock still, letting the blaze illumine her glowing hair and accent her piteous pallor and shadowed eyes until she was the perfect symbol of grief. To artist eyes at least; a specially keen pair of them rested upon her with approval from a second-story window of a disused carriage house. Because of their money the Bells dared to be ultra-thrifty; they had rented the old coachman's quarters. The tenant called himself Smith—a name that meant as much as any other to the Bells.

They accepted him as a rather decent vagabond, gave him freely milk, fruit and occasional hot meals, if he chanced to be visible as they sat down to table. Further human touch they had none, though Joyce confessed to her mates a certain curiosity as to pictures, their making and their makers. Commonly Smith was away very early in a rented car that took him to the hills.

Sometimes he was back by noon, other times he straggled in by moonlight. He was affable enough, but evidently had no inclination for real acquaintance. Therefore, Joyce's curiosity was little in the way of being gratified.

Janet stood drinking in life and warmth, her eyes shut tight, her face lifting a little to the shining. She started violently when a voice beside her said: "You are new. Why are you here? And where do you come from?" She all but lost balance—a warm, painty hand steadied her as the voice went on: "I hope you need money badly enough to welcome a chance of making it. Will $100 tempt you to be my model for a week? Not here—among the hills. Of course there'll be somebody with us."

"Ask Joyce—Miss Bell," Janet answered shakenly. "I am her new maid. She has the say."

At that Smith whistled faintly, but smothered it to a smirk. "Call her, please. I want the matter settled right away," he said. When Joyce came it was settled out of hand—of course in the affirmative, since she herself was to chaperon her new maid in this great adventure.

It began next morning at dawn—and fascinated her completely. Smith showed himself a gentleman, also something of a diplomat. By private treaty with Liza there was a liberal lunch basket, a kettle of coffee, also cushions to rest on while one ate. Smith rode in the car alone, Joyce liked to show her skill at the wheel, so drove her smart sedan. She was more charmed than ever when upon the second day a second man appeared on the scene—much, much younger, and handsomer than Smith, also it appeared, much keener in quest of beauty. Smith was all business—he sketched Janet in many poses against many backgrounds, always bareheaded, always in the coarse black frock—that somehow had learned a trick of emphasizing her classic lengths. Hourly it seemed she came to life in the sunshine—ate delicately but with relish. He came to lodge with Smith—room being plenty. Thus Joyce felt there could be nothing out of the way in asking them to dinner or supper at their convenience. She had meant fully to make Janet wait at table—but somehow the regard those outlanders bestowed upon her uncomeliness changed Miss Bell's mind. Besides—it wouldn't have been easy to get round her father—the major had a fine sense of hospitality. Having offered in good faith to care for this stray girl, she should be, of the family.

Smith paid on the dot at the end of the week, saying half-pettishly, half-humorously: "I'd try chartering you for six months if you were not growing so confoundedly good-looking." Janet smiled—her first smile—it so transfigured her he fell back a step amazed. "Why! You'd be magnificent—if only you were happy," he said, turning and all but running away.

Allan Kitredge, a little way off, watched his older friend with merely compassionate eyes. He knew the shadow upon Smith—the wife to whom he was simply an endowment, a handlisted Venus exquisite as a work of art, but not as a human being. All along he had had a fear of what contact with this bleached, wan shade of young womanhood might come to mean. It died the death, when half an hour later Smith said to him, holding his hands: "I'm quitting cold, Allan—you stay on—and marry Janet—you two deserve each other. And don't be sorry for me—I've had the joy of painting her as her soul came back to life. Sordidly, I rejoice in it—the picture will make me—shall ask twenty thousand for it. Won't Mrs. Smith be pleased? Bring Janet to see it in the spring exhibition—it will make a pleasant incident of your honeymooning."

"It will," said Allan. "So mote it be."

"When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers, therefore, are the founders of human civilization."—Daniel Webster.

THE PRESS AND THE FARMER

THE newspaper and the farmer are getting together. We see evidences of it every day. Perhaps one of the most evident is the amount of space accorded agriculture in the columns of the largest newspapers of the state. We see it again in the interest which breed associations and other farmers' organization are taking in the view-points of editors. Only recently a southern Wisconsin county brought a Minnesota editor to its breed association picnic to be one of its principal speakers.

The agricultural journal has of course been nearest to the farmer in the past, but the new interest which is developing in the farmer and in the editor, each for the other and his work, is creating a situation which is undoubtedly desired by both, and which will surely bring benefits to both. We need this closer relationship. It is desirable from every standpoint.

Perhaps one of the outstanding results of this more intimate relationship will be its reflection in the press of the magnitude of the nation's agriculture. The city man who has regarded the farmer as a laborer rather than an employer and capitalist as well is seeing agriculture in a new light. He is learning that the farmer is a progressive, thinking worker and will respect him for his aggressiveness and persistency in gaining his ends.

GOVERNOR M'CRAY ADVISES FARMERS TO STAY ON JOB

Farmer Needs Markets, Not Sympathy, Declares Governor of Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS—"What the farmer needs is markets. He doesn't want sympathy.

"Although it may sound criminal, nothing would be better for the price of wheat than to dump a million bushels in the Atlantic ocean today.

GOVERNOR W. T. McCRAY

"Within three years farming will be on a highly paying basis."

These above from Governor Warren T. McCray, who recently faced 100 creditors and told them that at the present time be is unable to meet his liabilities, estimated between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

The governor may give up farming; may give up his 15,000 acres of land and 1 200 prize head of cattle in an effort to straighten out his financial difficulties which he blames on the deflation of farm prices, and the depression of land values.

"Until the gravity of the present farm situation has cleared," he said in an interview, "there is but one thing for the young farmer to do: work day and night, practice rigid economy, diversify farming, minimize improvements and rotate crops."

Wants Decent Price

Although optimistic of the future in farming, McCray admits the present plight of farmers is critical.

"His only desire is to sell his products at a decent price. The farmer has no recourse to the curtailment of production, as other producers have. He may decide to decrease his production 20 per cent. The elements may do the same, and the farmer suffers.

"The only difference between a young farmer's problems and those of an old farmer is this: The young farmer has less experience and judgment. Therefore, the young farmer's problem is a more serious one.

"I would emphatically advise any young farmer to reduce his farm improvements to the barest necessities. Make the old buildings, the old machinery, and everything that is capable of use, outlive itself, and within two or three years the young farmer will be able to restock what he needs.

One Way Out

"The present inequality of profit never will endure. There is bound to be a shift and it is coming soon. There never was a more opportune time for the farmer than now.

"Right now there is but a slight demand for wheat. The opening of foreign trade, especially with Germany, will provide a means of stimulating the demand, the farmer will profit. Add one cent to the price of a loaf of bread as sold on the market, hand the profit to the farmer instead of the middleman, and the price of wheat will advance 65 cents a bushel.

"Although it may sound criminal nothing would be better for the price of wheat than to dump a million bushels in the ocean today. The effect would be startling.

"That would be the revolutionary way of bettering prices, the same holding true for all other classes of farm products.

"The same effect will have been accomplished within probably three years, and the drastic means will not be necessary. The young farmer will profit by his present losses because they will be valuable experience for the next crisis. Tell every young landowner to hold his possessions now above all times. Land values are at the point of making perceptible gains."

Prior to his election as chief executive of Indiana, McCray was considered one of the richest land owners in the state. Today it is doubtful if his vast land resources will cover his indebtedness.

SOUTH DAKOTA BUYERS SEEK WISCONSIN COWS

MINERAL POINT, Wis.—A. M. Shaffer of South Dakota, a buyer of Holstein dairy cattle, is in Iowa county seeking 500 cows to be shipped to his state. J. Roy Gordon, secretary of the Iowa County Holstein Breeders' association, is helping to locate the consignment in full, if possible. There is so much good grass now in southwest Wisconsin, following all the fine rains, dairy farmers no longer care to sell off surplus dairy cattle.

SECOND GROUP OF FOREIGN DAIRYMEN TO VISIT WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis.—The second group of foreign delegates to the World's Dairy congress to be held in the east early in October will visit dairy sections of Wisconsin September 18 to 21.

Arriving in Milwaukee on the morning of Sept. 18, the delegation will inspect the cream city's noted distributing plants and then motor through the dairy districts of Milwaukee and Waukesha counties to Oconomowoc. There they will visit a condensery, a certified milk plant and look over several of the oustanding Holstein herds.

Touring north the party will have an opportunity to view many Badger farms. Their next stop will be at Plymouth where cheese storing warehouses will be visited. Fond du Lac will play host to the foreign dairymen the following day. Several Guernsey herds will be inspected and the delegates will also see American cheese in the process of manufacture. Fort Atkinson will claim the visitors' attention on the afternoon of September 20.

The final day of the visit in this state will find them at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture and Experiment station. Here they will be shown many phases of work along agricultural lines which is being carried on at the Badger farm school. Leaving Wisconsin they will next visit agricultural centers in Minnesota.

COW TESTING CLUBS OF STATE SHOW GOOD AVERAGES FOR YEAR

MADISON, Wis.—Cow testing associations of Wisconsin are shown by their annual report to have spent a busy time during the past year.

During that time 3,242 unprofitable cows were sold or slaghtered; 107 members did official teting; 409 members have federal accredited herds; 927 members had their herds tested for tuberculosis; 2,736 members have silos, and 779 installed ventilating systems in their barns during the year.

WEEKLY CHEESE REVIEW

WM. J. ANDERONS.

MADISON, Wis.—William Winder, assistant dairy and food commissioner, and cheese expert for the commission said concerning high grade cheese:

"Much cheese has been and is being received at warehouses that although of marketable quality lack in the finer characteristics of American cheese. Possibly one of the greatest faults is the lack of smooth, waxy texture. A plug drawn from a cheese is short, breaks with the slightest bending, is slightly sandy or coarse. Talking with many makers they admit that they could have made a better cheese out in view of the fact that they are receiving the market price and getting Grade 1, they refuse to make any effort to produce real quality, claiming that they receive nothing for the extra time required and possibly a poorer yield. In very many instances a much better cheese could have been made in the same length of time without injury to the yield had the maker given more attention to the acid development in the curd.

"A short time ago while in a cheese factory, the helper tested the acidity of the whey by the acidimeter for the purpose of determining if there was present sufficient lactic acid development to remove the whey from the curd. According to his findings the test showed .23 per cent acidity. The curd was insufficiently firm and considerably matter. For my own information the curd was tested by the hot iron method and the results was a string of over ¾ inch. The cheese from this curd undoubtedly would produce a cheese of sour or acid texture. At best, it would lack quality in that it would not be smooth and waxy. In this instance no excuse could be offered other than carelessness or incompetency.

"The lack of knowledge of the acid development in matting curd also account for a lack of quality texture. Only recently a very fine curd was observed, a pile well advanced in the process of cheddaring. Upon inquiry I was informed by the maker that the curd had about ½ inch or ¾ inch of acid by the hot iron test. A test by the hot iron test was made and the curd was found to draw over 2½ inches. Texture again was being injured due entirely to failure to keep informed as to the development of the curd.

"A much better quality of cheese could in many instances be made if the maker would give greater attention to proper firming the curd and to the subsequent acid development. Attention to these important details does not of necessity mean more labor and a poor yield, but often would mean less labor and a better yield."

RESISTANCE IN RUHR COLLAPSING—POINCARE

CAMVILLERS, France—Premier Poincare, speaking at the inauguration of a monument to war dead, said that the resistance in the Ruhr had been overcome little by little and was beginning to collapse altogether.

HOG CHOLERA IS DISCOVERED ON FARM AT VIROQUA

Dr. Purcell of Madison Diagnoses Disease at Viroqua as Hog Cholera

VIROQUA, Wis.—Dr. J. T. Purcell of Madison, connected with the state and federal departments of agriculture, was called to this city on Tuesday to diagnose a mysterious disease among the hogs of Mr. Leonard Cass residing on a farm within the city limits. He diagnosed the disease as hog cholera. Forty hogs have died from the disease. The remaining ones have been vaccinated with the hope of saving them. The doctor attributed the cause in this instance to the feeding of city garbage. The dead swine will be burned and buried and everything possible will be done to prevent the spread of the contagion. Mr. Purcell advises the vaccination of every hog within a distance of two or three miles, as hog cholera is the most dreaded disease known to hog breeders.

JULY REPORT OF HOLMEN C. T. A.

Considerable jostling around was done this month in herd averages. Ernest L. Skogen's registered and grade Jerseys coming on top with 720 pounds milk, testing 5.45 per cent making 39.28 pounds B. F. This without silage or feed is very good for this time of the year.

First frost reported in New York. That place claims everything.

BUT PLEASE DO NOT TRY IT!

A person can bluff bees into making their stingers behave, declares E. R. Root, editor of a bee culture magazine. And he proceeds to prove it, as the photo shows. The occasion of the unique "demonstration" of bee-hypnotism was the session of the Cook County (Ill.) Beekeepers Conference.

HIS AUNT

Mrs. J. J. Wilder, aunt of President Coolidge, raises chickens for market on her farm which adjoins the president's father's farm at Plymouth, Vt.

BROWN SWISS SIRES ADDED TO HERDS

BELOIT, Wis.—Sixteen Brown Swiss sires have found homes on Wisconsin farms and will take part in keeping Wisconsin first in dairying, according to Ira Inman, secretary of the Brown Swiss Breeders' association.

The big brown "yodel" cow is steadily gaining in popularity among Badger breeders. The recent honor roll announced for ten months and yearly milk production records include the names of several Wisconsin breeders. These new sires are to be added to herds in Calumet, Marathon, Green, Grant, Oconto, Wood, Waukesha, Kewaunee, La Crosse, Chippewa and Monroe counties.

SOYBEAN MEET OPENS TUESDAY AT MADISON

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Hoosierland's soybean enthusiasts are going to attend the National Soybean Growers' meeting at Madison, Wis., on September 11. Two automobile loads of growers plan to drive to Wisconsin from Howard county while men in at least a dozen other counties have signified their intention of being present when the meeting is called.

Charles Meharry, Attica, vice president of the Indiana association and Ward A. Ostrander of the field crops staff at Purdue university are scheduled to talk to the assembled "bean" men.

CASHTON WILL HAVE NEW MILK CONDENSERY

CASHTON, Wis.—The Borden condensed Milk company has sold its holding here to the Danish Pride Milk Products company, which has other holdings in this part of the state. Officials of the Pride company have been scouring the county getting dairymen signed up to start a condensery here, with good success. The plant will be enlarged from time to time, as the business grows.

APPLE FLOAT

Left-over apple sauce can be made into dessert for the children's supper. To each cup add the well-beaten white of one egg. Then whip sauce and egg together and chill.

TOBACCO HARVEST NOW UNDER WAY IN VERNON COUNTY

VIROQUA, Wis.—The harvesting and housing of the tobacco crop of Vernon county is now in progress. The late tobacco is of fine quality, far surpassing the earlier tobacco, which was hindered in growth by extreme dry weather of July. Not many crops were injured by summer storms. A streak of hail destroyed a few crops two weeks ago, but as most of them were insured the loss to the owners was not great. The weather conditions have been ideal during the week for properly harvesting and curing the weed.

HUSSA CANNING COMPANY BUYS BIG NEW FARM

The Hussa Canning and Pickle company made a deal for another fine farm last week—the Quakenbush farm, one of the best in the Melrose district. It consists of 337 acres, with modern improvements, including a $2,500 system of water works. The Canning company acquired the farm in a trade for business block in Sparta.

ISSUE U. S. CERTIFICATES

WASHINGTON—After remaining out of the money market for three months the treasury announced a new issue of certificates of indebtedness aggregating two hundred million dollars and maturing six months from September 15, bearing four and a quarter per cent interest.

Coming Events

The annual Inter-State fair will be held at the fair grounds, La Crosse, September 18 to 21, inclusive. Bigger and better than ever. Plan to attend and bring your friends.

LA CROSSE MAN IS DELEGATE TO DAIRY CONGRESS

J. C. Marquardt, Whose Mother Resides Here, Named Delegate from New York State

J. C. Marquardt, son of Frances Marquardt, 1221 Market street, has been appointed a delegate from the state of New York to the world's dairy congress. The congress will be held in Washington, D. C., October 2 and 3.

U. W. Graduate

J. C. Marquardt is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. From 1917-1921 he was a member of the faculty of the University of California, after which he made a connection with a produce house on the Pacific coast. In the winter of 1922 he was granted a short leave of absence to assist in giving a course of study at Madison.

While in California Mr. Marquardt served two years as secretary-treasurer of the California Dairy Produce Manufacturing association. He is also associated with the leading organization in the country dealing with the manufacture of dairy products.

Now at Cornell

On June 1 Mr. Marquardt accepted a position as assistant professor at Cornell university. Since then he has appeared on the program of the American Society of Bacteriologists (eastern branch). He has devoted most of his time to work at the government laboratories at Geneva since going to New York. Word of his appointment as a delegate to the congress was forwarded to him at Rochester on Labor day while he was attending the Rochester exposition and horse show.

STATE TON LITTER CONTEST NOW NEAR THE FINISH LINE

MADISON, Wis.—With the approach of fall Wisconsin's Ton Litter contest has turned into the home stretch.

The Junior Livestock Exposition, held in October at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, marks the finish line when the winners in the state Ton Litter contest will be declared. Pork producers throughout the state are grooming their fattened hogs for the supreme test in the show ring, when the champion litter of the state will be chosen.

With 12 litters at the present time Buffalo county leads the field in the number of original entries still "carrying on." Four entries from Washington county are still in the running. A litter of ten Durocs owned by Edgar Schroeder won the county contest in Sheboygan county. Then Poland Chinas, the property of E. C. Bechtoldt, carried off first honors in Green county, while Rock county's contest went to Chester Manther with a litter of 13 Durocs.

Four entries from Washington county, five from Jefferson and eight from Grant county are still in the running for the big prize. Fond du Lac, Green Lake and Winnebago counties all promise to be on hand with their litters and entries from these counties are expected to give account of themselves in the finals.

FOR STREET WEAR

Beltless coat dresses, with loose plain backs and long, tightly fitted sleeves, promise to be the popular street dress for autumn.

Holstein Bulls--- Poland China Boars

Mr. Farmer and Breeder: Do you know we have the kind of stock you should use at the head of your herd?

Why: Because we have been breeding and developing this herd for twenty-three years. Our success has been demonstrated by our winnings at the leading fairs. We have some real bargains in Bulls, six to nine months old, all well grown and beautiful markings out of cows that have records of 650 to 800 pounds of butter in a year. Our stock and prices will surprise you. (We sold three bulls last month).

We are making special prices on Bulls and Spring Boars this month, and on easy terms. All we ask of you is to call and let us show you what we have to offer, and give you the price.

PAN AMERICAN WOMEN PLAN A PEACE MEETING

Meetings to Be Held Simultaneously in Capitols of Republics

WASHINGTON. —The importance of the meetings to be held by women October 10 in the capitals of all the American republics was emphasized tonight in statements by Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, and Mrs. Robert Lansing, made public through the Pan American International Women's committee. The meetings are to take place simultaneously under the auspices of the committee for discussion of woman's part in promoting international amity.

The statement by Mrs. Hughes, who is chairman of the committee, was as follows:

"There was never a time when international friendliness was of greater importance than now and I feel deeply that these sectional conferences will further more friendly relations and harmonious co-operation among the women of the Americas. They cannot fail to create a better understanding and a larger sympathy, thus placing their international interests upon a more enduring basis."

Mrs. Lansing, chairman of the United States section of the committee, says the meeting would be "of the greatest help in creating common thinking and common action among pan-American women."

Household Suggestions

CHILDREN'S STOCKINGS

In darning the large holes in children's stockings it is a help to stretch coarse net over the holes, catch it around the edges with a few basting stitches and then weave the darning through the meshes.

PROTECT THE GRASS

Tramped grass, with coal ground into it, is seldom healthy afterward. If coal must be carried across the lawn, lay down planks for the carriers to walk on.

FELT USED

Old felt hats can be turned into iron holders, kettle holders, rubbing pads for waxed floors and rounds to go upon chair and table legs.

TO CLEAN PIPES

Tie a bit of absorbent cotton to a coarse crochet hook and use the swab thus formed to clean the drains of bowls and bath tubs.

HANGING COMFORTS

Fasten curtain poles in the closets where you keep your quilts and comforts. The poles should be a foot away from the wall. Spread the comforts over the poles and cover the mass with a sheet of unbleached muslin.

ON WASH DAY

Except in the case of very soiled clothing, extended soaking is a hindrance rather than a help. An hour is enough to dissolve dirt and will not set it all through the garment.

CREAMY PUDDINGS

All puddings that should be smooth and creamy when baked, such as custard, bread, rice and tapioca, should bake or steam slowly.

PAINT REMOVER

Strong liquid ammonia or a strong solution of potash or washing soda will dissolve paint or varnish.

COFFEE POT

Tea pots and coffee pots should be cleaned thoroughly daily. The grounds or leaves should be removed and the pot rinsed with cold water and washed with clear hot water. They should be scalded with boiling water, wiped dry, and placed where they may air.

MOTH PREVENTION

One way to insure furs and woolens against moths is to wrap them in newspapers that have been moistened with turpentine.

CLEANER FOR GLOVES

Powdered alum and fuller's earth in equal proportions make an excellent cleaner for white suede gloves.

WASHING FLANNEL

Never use yellow soap for washing flannels because it contains resin that is hard on wool. Rubbing flannel thickens and hardens it. The temperature for rinsing and washing should be the same.

SPOTS ON BLACK CLOTHES

Clear black coffee diluted with water containing a little ammonia may be used to clean black cloth garments successfully.

Engineering Is Girl's Job, Too

MISS CLARE NICOLET AT WORK

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—It's a lot more fun to run turbines and dynamos, and study and operate machinery than it is to clerk in a store or teach school.

So announces Miss Clare Nicolet, 22-year-old mechanical engineer in the big power plant of the Kansas City Power & Light company.

Miss Nicolet, without losing any of her feminine charm when off duty, is as stern and efficient a mechanical engineer during working hours as any man.

It's a Climb

Weighing only 95 pounds and not as tall as the average, she finds it necessary to use a stepladder more than men. Otherwise, she is on an equal plane with them, she believes.

"The men in the power plant treat me with respect," she explains. "At first they were inclined to doubt my ability, but, after I had shown that I knew machinery, they put me on a level with themselves."

Miss Nicolet wears overalls when at work. Overalls and knickers on women no longer attract much attention, she says.

Hard to Start

Miss Nicolet from girlhood interested herself in machinery. But she had trouble convincing others in her sincerity. Authorities at the University of Illinois were skeptical, but bowed to her desire for engineering as her career.

Her debut in the Kansas City power plant also was difficult, but she showed her employers and fellow employes what she knew and could do. Now she's in charge of certain units of the plant and can hold her job as long as she wants it, her superiors say.

"Of course, you get a little greasy in your work, but that's part of the fun," the young girl engineer remarks. "Then, when working hours are gone and you get into more dainty garments, you feel fine."

BEAUTY BONDS

BY MME. HELENE RUBINSTEIN
(International Beauty Expert.)

A woman's hands should be no less lovely than her face and may be cultivated to a point of exquisiteness quite beyond that of her features.

The added attraction which any woman may achieve through the cultivation of her hands more than repays the trouble it makes.

The dainty, feminine type of woman always has lovely hands, even if she does all her own housework and indulges in outdoor sports.

Immaculate cleanliness is the first consideration. When you cleanse your hands from time to time during the day do it thoroughly. Don't dabble them in a little cold water which rinses off the surface dirt and grinds in the rest.

Wash in tepid water, using a good soap. If soft water is not available, add a little borax or a few drops of ammonia.

Scrub the nails with a nail brush and remove any stains with lemon juice. Then, after drying the hands, use a little glycerin or any soothing lotion that agrees with your skin.

At night rub cold cream well into the hands, after cleansing, particularly about the nails. Then draw on a pair of roomy old gloves and keep the hands annointed and protected during the night.

In the morning wash the hands in soap and water. Then massage a little skin food into the skin and train down the cuticle about the nails with an orangewood stick.

The nails, of course, require extra care, but every woman can be her own manicurist if she will equip herself with slender, curved scissors, a nail file, a buffer and an orangewood stick. It might be well to mention that it is no longer considered good form to over-polish the nails or to file them in long points.

A slender, flexible wrist and well-rounded arm add to the beauty of the hand and can be attained by exercise and massage. All arm exercises are bound to be good for the hands, and the graceful motions learned in classical dancing train them to assume poses of beauty and grace.

Very fancy stitching and elaborate designs of perforations and cutouts of contrasting color are noticed on the new fall gauntlets.

A JAZZ CURE IS POSSIBLE SAYS TEACHER

Girls Will Stop When They Realize How Cake Eaters Clutch Looks

The next time Mary Ellen, or Elizabeth Jane starts for the country club dance or any where else to dance tell her how pretty she looks and that she is going to be the most graceful dancer on the floor.

A consciousness of one's personal appearance will do more than anything else to clear up the jazz era of dancing, says a prominent teacher of the why and wherefores of the heel and toe.

The cheek to cheek and cake eaters clutch couldn't exist if people realized how they look. The same dancing teacher advocates that vulgarity in dancing does not arise from vulgarity at all but from exuberence. Young people get tired of doing the same thing and want to try something different. Then says the dancing teacher is the time to turn this extra exuberance into thoughts of—self. Yes, I mean it. There is a consciousness of self which every one should have. Selves can express crudeness and vulgarity or they can express grace and beauty.

"If a young girl in my classes shows a tendency to want to clutch her partner around the neck, I don't tell her outright that it is in bad teaste. Instead, I praise her clothes, her hands, her walk. If she has danced particularly well at some other time, I recall it to her.

"And I have never known a girl, once she realized it was possible to express beauty in her dancing, who didn't want to express that beauty all the while.

"It is the same with boys. Boys wont' admit it, but they're vainer than girls. Get a boy to thinking about his hair, his shoes, his finger nails. Praise him for his walk, audibly admire the way he carries his shoulders, and he'll never fall into the slinking ways of the dance hall lizard.

"There is hardly any other question of behavior on the dance floor that will not resolve itself purely into a matter of taste. Give the young people judgment and a sense of personal pride and the jazz era will lose every one of its objectionable features."

STRANGER HERE HELD UP, ROBBED OF $8 ON SUNDAY

Robert Kline, Cheyenne, Wyoming, Robbed at Point of Gun

A man giving his name as Robert Kline, Cheyenne, Wyoming, came to Central police station and reported that he had been held up at the point of a gun and robbed of $8 near Grand Crossing at 10:15 p. m. Sunday. Kline reported the holdup to the police shortly after it occurred.

Kline describes the hold up man as being about 26 years of age, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, smooth face and dressed in dark trousers, khaki shirt and cap. He claims the man flashed what he believed to be a .45 caliber Colt on him, while his pockets were fleeced.

Kline is being held at Central station pending further investigation into the case.

BILLY MAINE AND COMPANY MAKE BIG HIT ON SUNDAY

La Crosse theatergoers turned out en masse at the Majestic theater Sunday to welcome back to La Crosse their old favorites, Billy and Marie Maine, in one of the comedians' best productions, "Somewhere in France." Billy opened his engagement here with this popular musical comedy in answer to special request and Sunday it repeated the success it made here last year. "Somewhere in France" is staged this year with new scenery, new costumes and spicy new songs. Billy and Marie Maine have surrounded themselves with an entirely new cast of players, every one of them clever comedians, singers and dancers.

An hour couldn't go faster than it does in "Somewhere in France," with Private Goldbrick the center of attention most of the time, for there is not a dull moment in the comedy. The audiences are clapping and laughing from the opening character revue to the grand finale. Scores of new jokes and stunts are introduced and a stunningly gowned chorus lends color and spice to the performance. One of the most popular features was the new male quartette which had to answer many insistent encores. Beginning on Wednesday Billy Maine and his company will put on "Private Goldbrick at Home," a sequel to "Somewhere in France."

WATCH COAL PRICES PINCHOT ADVICE TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Suggests Steps be Taken to Protect Consumer Against Increase

HARRISBURG, Pa.—By The Associated Press.—Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania Monday sent letters to the governors of all anthracite consuming states suggesting investigation of methods "to prevent gouging" of coal consumers, with a view to a personal conference later concerning joint action.

HARRISBURGH, Pa.—By The Associated Press.—Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania Sunday made public a letter to President Coolidge suggesting that, with an anthracite coal supply assured for the coming winter as a result of the agreement reached by representatives of operators and miners here Saturday night, steps be taken to safeguard the consumer against increased prices.

The governor proposed that the interstate commerce commission investigate coal transportation rates with a view to reducing them.

He also told the President he was preparing to invite the governors and anthracite using states to go into the matter of margins and profits of wholesalers, brokers, jobbers and retailers with him.

on the Mormon Coulee road when Mr. Rounds noticed the other car approaching.

"I drew over to the side of the road as far as I could," said Mr. Rounds, "and then proceeded slowly. The other car approached until it was within a few feet of me, and then swerved suddenly, striking my car amidships. When I came to I was sitting in the bottom of the car, and the first thing I saw was Mrs. Rounds searching for the awo children. Then Mr. Le Jeune came up and together we got Mrs. Le Jeune out of the wreckage. Then the ambulance came and took us to the hospital."

Police claim that the driver of the car that swerved into the Rounds car was intoxicated. Edgar Nelson, the driver of the other car, was accompanied by Segor Haugen, also of Westby.

It was announced at the hospital this morning that Mrs. Le Jeune had several hours of rest last night, and that although her condition is very serious, it is thought that she will recover. An X-ray to determine whether a fracture of the skull exists or not was taken this morning.

JAPAN'S HORROR IS SERMON TOPIC SUNDAY MORNING

Rev. C. C. Rowlison Gives Christian Interpretation to Catastrophe

"The Japanese catastrophe" and its Christian interpretation, was the topic of Rev. C. C. Rawlisons sermon at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. He said in part:

"With a few generations of comparatively stable nature, we are prone to forget that we live in a catastrophic world. 'No man knoweth the day or the hour' when our old world will shiveringly settle to a new equilibrium, and in this settling swallow up multitudes of the children who have sprung from the living earth.

"Doesn't Christianity require us to go back to the catastrophic conception of the universe—to the idea of a direct creation, in which every event is a direct act of God? Couldn't God have averted this anguish, and would he not have done so but for the paganism of the people, for their failure to respond to the preacher's demand that they repent? This interpretation never has been able to explain why the best of men suffer equally with the worst. If God sends his rain equally upon the just and the unjust, does he not also send his earthquakes to swallow up the righteous with the unrighteous? He certainly does.

"In other words, the moral judgments of God have no direct relationship with the phenomena of nature. It is the reflecion of reasoning beings upon these appalling visitations that may lead to moral values, but there is no moral cause behind them. Ourside of the fact that there is no way of receiving sufficient warning of the approach of these awful upheavals, and no way of avoiding their consequences, there is nothing in the mere event specially different from the death that constantly overtakes human beings of all ages, and the losses which are everywhere and continually sustained.

Where Tragedy Lies

"The tragedy lies in the unusual and the unexpected. It is all a natural thing just as all other deaths are natural. But of course it is no less a tragedy because of this fact.

"Then you may ask, Isn't Christianity simply the coldest and most heartless of scientific propositions By no manner of means. The point to Christianity is that it insists upon our moral obligation to our spiritual Father, respective of transcient worldly situations. It insists upon the most intelligent provision against such tragedies. It insists that our physical life is transcient and unstable at all times, and that it only affords opportunity for genuine spiritual discipline, and for the closest fellowship with our heavenly Father.

"The modern Christian message to Japan is: In spite of all the tragedy, of all the horor, of all the desolation, of all the loss, the heavenly Father loves you, and your soul-anguish is his anguish too, he suffers as any father would suffer with his stricken children, only infinitely more intensely and with infinitely more wisdom. And we who, in common with you, are children of that Father extend to you our fraternal sympathy, and we share with you our possessions, until you are able to recover your productive capacity and may once again stand upon your own vigorous strength.

"How much more truly Christian this will be than for us to give untold offerings of men and money to carry on war with Japan, which not a few were eager to do only three short years ago! After all, that awful earthquake has brought only a tithe of the suffering and loss that would have followed such a war. Such a war would have belied our Christian professions. Our Christian professions will now be tested by the extent and earnestness with which we co-operate with the Red Cross and other agencies in expressing our sense of brotherhood. Shall we rise to the greatness of the opportunity to express our Christian sympathy?"

STATE PRESSMEN WANT TECHNICAL SCHOOLS STARTED

planned to establish a night school course in every city where there is a local union, La Crosse being one of the first cities where this will be undertaken. It is believed, it was said, that this work may begin about January, 1924.

Not only was every local union in Wisconsin represented, and several cities where the number of pressmen employed is too small to support a local but the Winona local was also well-represented, as guests, and before their departure put in an application for membership in the Wisconsin state organization.

The convention adopted resolutions praising the work of International President Berry in the fight against tuberculosis and endorsing the records of members of the International board of directors of the union.

LA CROSSE COUNTY SPENDS LARGE SUM TO LICENSE AUTOS

Automobile drivers of La Crosse county spent $83,690.50 for car licenses for 1923, according to word received from the secretary of state's office on Monday. Of this amount, approximately one-fourth, or $20,221.50, will go for county highway purposes, while the other three-fourths will be used on state highways. The total amount of license money collected in the state was announced as $4,791,158.25, and $1,157,319.19 will be apportioned to counties for highway use. The cost of administration of the license bureau was $161,881.48.

Milwaukee county was far ahead of the list in the amount paid for licenses, with a total of $845,281.75, and Bayfield county was the lowest with a total of $17,831.50. Totalling the divisioning of money paid for automobile licenses closes the old licensing system for Wisconsin.

sent by train. A guard of ten picked men has been left at the scene. Until high surf, which is running has subsided, it will be impossible to do any salvage work.

The Fuller and Woodbury both are high on the rocks, the former listing twenty degrees to the starboard and the latter forty degrees to port. The Chauncey has lodged high up inside the rocks, but she has remained upright. The Young is on her beam and is three-fourths submerged. The Delphy lies in a similar position, but she is broken in half. On the beach under the cliff the S. P. Lee is stranded with a twenty degree list to port. The Nicholas is broadside from the beach, listed 10 degrees to starboard.

Heavy Sea Running

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A message received at the navy department early Monday from Admiral Robison, commanding the Pacific fleet, said no movable material could be salvaged from the seven destroyers stranded on the California coast at Point Honda, until the heavy surf abated. The message read:

"All survivors of stranded destroyers have been sent to San Diego by train: some remaining by destroyers of destroyer squadron No. 11. No movable material can be salvaged until heavy surf abated. Then will require protracted efforts. Commander destroyer squadron of battle fleet has been directed to remain in charge until further orders. Officers and men of Woodbury and Fuller reported saved."

Survivors Lightly Clad

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—By The Associated Press.—A special train carrying about 500 seamen, members of the crews of the seven destroyers wrecked Saturday night near Point Arguello passed through Los Angeles Sunday night for San Diego.

Hardly a man wore an entire uniform. The costume of many was limited to an undershirt and a pair of trousers, while some still clung to their life belts as an auxiliary covering.

At every station the wardrobes of the men were augmented by offerings from sympathetic civilians. One husky sailor strutted forth at Santa Barbara clad in a blanket and a woman's hat, barefooted and with only the remnant of trousers.

Civilians Offer Aid

Officers were as badly off as their men, and several who had escaped clad only in their pajamas, took advantage of the offers of civilians and wore clothes of motley styles.

The effect of the disaster on the nerves of the men could be noted at every sudden lurch or jerk of the train, many waking from fitful dozing and leaping to their feet glaring wildly about.

Instances of individual heroism were on the lips of everyone. Comrades told how Raymond Rhodebamel of the destroyer Delphy at the risk of his life stood on the listed decks of the ship, slippery with oil, and hauled three men from the chill waters; of how I. T. Scott and John Stallman swam to a raft in the raging waters and rescued three shipmates, rowing them to a point near Arguello lighthouse, where they were hauled up a 110 foot cliff by ropes.

Seaman Dies Lashed to Mast

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—A tragedy within a tragedy was enacted about the destroyer Delphy which went ashore seventy-five miles north of Santa Barbara Saturday night with six other destroyers of the battle fleet. This tragedy resulted in the death of Seaman Pearson.

As the Delphy crashed bow first into the rugged rocks, Pearson was thrown down a ladder and both legs were broken. His comrades brought him on deck. There he was blinded by oil from bursting pipes. Nearly crazed by pain and desperation, he resisted efforts of his shipmates to rig up a breeches buoy to rescue him.

The vessel began to break up and his comrades were forced to lash him to a mast, in the hope of returning later to take him off. Other injured were taken ashore and just as the last man, except Pearson, was safe on the mainland, the Delphy broke in two and slid beneath the waves, with Pearson crying piteously for help.

Today as parts of the wrecked destroyer were being dashed to and fro in the boiling surf, Pearson's camrades said they could distinguish his haggard face through the white and green of the sea.

A. Harper, state health officer.

The board can inspect the buildings and recommend changes, but cannot order buildings condemned and closed the ruling held.

LA CROSSE NELSONS TOPPLE DAHL'S FORDS HERE SUNDAY

SECOND CONTEST GOES TO NELSONS BY 11 TO 5 SCORE

Big Benn Showered off Hill in Sixth Inning; Groth Gives Two Hits

STROMWELL YIELDS NINE BLOWS IN SEVEN INNINGS

Teams Split Twenty-two Hits at Eleven Apiece

ANOTHER packed grandstand watched the La Crosse Nelsons topple the Dahl's Fords at Copeland park Sunday afternoon in a game which furnished fans with lots of action on the run-ways and which called into play the exhibition of four pitchers. The tally was 11 to 5.

The game passed into history without one hitch or intermission and fans generally enjoyed the exhibition, much in contrast to the memorable Labor day struggle. Elmer Prenn, former Nelson player, was the base athletes' interpretation of how an official should work contributed its bit to making the day a success. Prenn was down on every play and his decisions were snappy and accurate.

Till Homers

An outstanding feature of the play Sunday was Tommy Till's homer into center field off Cappy Groth in the seventh. It was a model pitch for Tommy and he turned it into a model hit. Krismer looked like a veteran when he scored a double play assisted in the fifth inning, enveloping Smith's liner and tagging Meredith, who had doubled, off second base. And then Petey Voss has a lot of credit coming for the brilliant style in which he caught Big Benn yesterday. Benn was using his hook to the limit, but the Fords' backstop faltered not once in measuring up to the game.

Fans marveled at the confidence and improved game of the Fords. They worked hard behind Big Benn, but there was a noticeable new lease of life when one of their own number, Cappy Roth, came to the mound in the seventh inning. But one of the five errors credited to them was made by Ford players, that by Krismer. Angell, replacing Troyanek at third, was terrible in three pegs to first, while Benn himself bounced what should have been an easy assist off the grandstand.

Five Errors Apiece

There were also five errors back of Stromwell and Fitzke. The hitting was divided evenly at 11 apiece, Stromwell giving 9 and Fitzke 2, while Benn was found for 9 and Groth for 2. Stromwell didn't overexert himself in the seven innings he was there. Benn pitched good ball until he began to weaken in the fourth and fifth. Then three hits and a walk coupled with a pair of Angell's errors led to his exit after the sixth.

The Dahl's scored one each in the second and third innings before Manager Stitch's tribe had seen the scoreboard once. Ducky Smith's error of Krismer's grounder, sacrifices by Otto and Hurts, and a hit by Byers resulted in the first tally. Martelle led off with a double, his second hit, in the third, and went to third on a wild pitch. Christofer walked and advanced on a balk. Angell flied out and Voss dropped a fly to Fitzke, who hesitated on the throw-in and Martelle scored.

Score 3 in Sixth

With two down in the sixth, the Fords scored three times on Shields' error, two base hits by Byers and Benn, a walk by Martelle and another hit by Christofer. They threatened again in the ninth but Bobby Fitzke saw to it differently. Krismer reached first on Ducky's wonderful stop but erratic peg, and Otto got his second hit, a two bagger. Hults and Byers whiffed, Groth walked, filling the bases. Fitzke dropped Martelle at the plate, the third strikeout of the inning.

The La Crosse Nelsons began batting Benn in the fourth and continued it through the sixth for ten runs. A home run by Till was the only score scored off Cappy.

WILLS FAILS TO BLOCK BIG FIGHT

FIRPO COULD WIN ONLY THROUGH STROKE OF LUCK SAYS EXPERT SEES NO ONE BUT CHAMP JACK

BY SPARROW McGANN
(Special Correspondent of the Tribune)
(Copyright, 1923)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Having looked over both Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo in the course of their preparations for the world's championship battle at the Polo Grounds in New York next Friday night, the writer sees no one but Dempsey.

At the same time Firpo, through a stroke of luck, could win. If, by chance, that powerful right of his should connect with the champion's jaw at a time when the contender had not been weakened by punches then a new king would take his place upon the champion's throne.

Hard to Dope

In other words a man with Firpo's enormous strength and massive build will prove dangerous to Dempsey so long as he is upon his feet and in command of his faculties. If you try to work out a result on the basis of boxing science you stop half way through sheer disgust. For Firpo doesn't figure at all. Not in any way can you give him a look in.

He doesn't know anything about boxing as the sport is practiced by our mitt wielders. The very things that the best teachers tell the novice not to do Firpo does and, on the other hand, he doesn't do things that the experts hold to be necessary if a boxer is to get any where in the game.

The writer doesn't know how Firpo's amateur advisers feel about it, but personally he would suggest that the Argentinian stop trying to learn to fight after the American manner and go into the ring against Dempsey resolved to do battle according to his natural gifts. This statement is made because Luis does so very badly the things they have been trying to teach him. He has not got a left hand and he will not have one against Jack Dempsey. This is not to say he may not try to use his port flipper against the champion. He probably will. But it will not bother Jack any and after the South American gets a wallop or two he will forget all about his left and seek to beat Dempsey's head off with his right.

And if he lands upon the champion with his right Dempsey will know he has been hit. Or, perhaps, he may not know it until some time afterwards. But there is where the luck will come in. Firpo will be lucky if he lands it not only because he telegraphs it but because it moves slowly.

Jack, of course, will surely not neglect to keep moving always to Firpo's left and this will make it extremely difficult for Firpo to bring his death dealing fist into play.

Firpo's bouts in Atlantic City have shown that anyone can hit him. His sparring partners have no trouble doing it. It is the simplest of their problems. And they can avoid a lot of Firpo's wallops. But always they receive a few and these hurt them even granting that Firpo is pulling all his punches against his sparring partners. So Dempsey can hit him and will hit him early and often.

What then will happen? Will he be spurred to anger, furious, abandon, dashing in with a whirl wind of fearful blows any one of which is qualified to put Dempsey down, or will he get into a panic and virtually quit. No one can tell. Firpo is not worried at all about Dempsey. He doesn't figure that any living man has a chance against him. No one can tell—not even he himself can tell—how he will act when the big surprise comes.

If Dempsey shows he can hit as he hit at Toledo the battle ought not to go beyond the first round. But every close observer of the champion doubts that he can throw his fists as he did against Willard. Yet again you can bet he has it in him to hit harder than he hit at Shelby, a great deal harder.

If you saw a gunman whom you knew to be a sharp shooter up against another gunman who was a poor shot, and yet was fearless and had a forty-four from which he could spray death dealing shots, you would pick the sharp shooting gunman to win. Yet you would concede that the other guy had a chance of getting home one of his bullets. That is the only way you can dope out the result of this coming battle between Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo.

Heavy Eater.

As a man this Firpo is a grand guy. He has a kindly nature and is everything that Carpentier looked to be and wasn't. He lives in a little cottage in the Chelsea section and his chief amusements are card playing, disc throwing and eating. He enjoys eating more than anything else. An American trainer would throw up his hands to see Luis dig in at a table but that is the way he has always trained and he sees no good reason to change.

One wonders what will happen when Jack hooks a left into his bread basket. He boxes according to his own views and trains according to his own views. The sort of training instructions he receives from Felix Bunge in Buenos Aires is as follows:

"Be prepared to battle to the death for your native land, Argentine is watching you with prayers."

At which Luis laughs and taps his head significantly.

REDS PUSH WAY BACK TO SECOND PLACE AHEAD OF PIRATES; YANKEES WIN TWO

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press — The Cincinnati Reds pushed the Pittsburgh Pirates back into third place in the National league by trouncing them, 8 to 3. The hit score was even, twelve all, but superb fielding on the part of Cincinnati players kept down the Pirates' runs.

The New York Yankees won two easy games from Boston, six to two and four to nothing. Babe Ruth cracked out Number 34, while Witt circled twice and Scott once. The Red Sox got only three hits off Shawkey in the second game.

The New York Giants lost to the Brooklyn Robins, 6 to 3 in an uneventful game in which Fournier and Kelly pounded out homers.

The Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns in Chicago, 4 to 2, in a hard pitched battle.

The Detroit Tigers lost to Cleveland, 5 to 3.

Philadelphia trimmed Washington in Washington, 5 to 2.

St. Louis shut out Chicago in St. Louis, 3 to 0.

According to a story printed in the St. Louis Dispatch, Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman of the St. Louis Nationals, and Branch Rickey, manager of the team, engaged in a fist fight in New York on the Cardinals last eastern trip. Rickey is said to have peeved Hornsby by opining that the latter was trying to run the ball club.

Despite Ruth's home run yesterday, Cy Williams of the Philadelphia Nationals continued to lead both major leagues, though only by one homer. Williams now has thirty-five and Babe thirty-four.

One Eddie Dyer, a callow rookie, pitched his first game in the majors for the St. Louis Nationals and did it so well he eclipsed the slipping Chicago Cubs 3 to 0.

The New York Americans continue to make something of a runaway race in that league. During the week they won five out of seven games, though Washington made the best showing, dropping but one contest out of six.

Dubuque Here With Nelsons On Wednesday

THE Dubuque baseball club, winners of the pennant in the Mississippi Valley league this season, are coming to La Crosse for a game with the La Crosse Nelsons Wednesday afternoon starting at 4 o'clock.

This is Bobby Moore's outfit and Bobby of course will occupy his regular berth at third. Bobby was unable to be with the local club Sunday because of a tournament at Dubuque, which they won by defeating the Red Sox yesterday, 6 to 2.

Bobby said Monday morning that Joe McGinnity, "Iron Man" and old Giant star, would start the game here. McGinnity, it will be remembered, is 54 years of age and still pitching knockout ball.

They're coming here Wednesday, the ball club intact which won the Mississippi Valley league.

FOREST FIRES SPREADING

SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—The forest fire which has been raging for several days in the Santa Inez mountains rushed down towards Santa Barbara Saturday was raging along a front of several miles in length and within one mile of the city limits. Ranchers in Mission canyon were driven from their homes early and considerable property loss seems certain.

SPRING GROVE HORSE SHOE PITCHERS TRIM LOCAL TEAM, 400-174

A delegation of horse shoe pitchers from Spring Grove came over and walloped a local team at West Avenue playfield Sunday afternoon, 400 to 174. Spring Grove had a total of 134 ringers against 74 for La Crosse, the visitors dropping over 20 double ringers to five for the home team.

"They're all good," said Charles Hyland, local manager, when asked if Ellingson starred for the visitors. Ellingson manages the Spring Grove team. He won the grand prize in the meet here last Ford Day.

COACH MILLS HAS BRIGHT PROSPECTS AT BELOIT COLLEGE

Thirty Candidates Expected to Draw Suits at Opening of Grid Training Season

BELOIT, Wis.—Thirty candidates for this season's football team are expected to draw suits for the opening of the Beloit college training season, September 13, with the first game of the season against DeKalb normal three weeks away.

Tommy Mills, head coach expects to have increased the squad to forty men by the time school opens, and in addition to these will have a complete freshman squad. The rules of the Midwest college Little Eight conference, of which Beloit, Ripon and Lawrence are members, do not permit the use of freshmen on the varsity squad.

For the first time in the history of the institution, Mills will have two complete teams in action against each other every night that scrimmage is scheduled.

Unless misfortune overtakes the Beloit squad, Mills will have one of the best prospects in the history of the school. At least five men of previous all-state selection will be available for line positions. In addition to these veterans he will have Captain John McAuliffe, for two years unanimous choice for all-state quarter and Clayton Addie, a regular backfield man for the past three years.

The line will be especially strong with McGraw, Schaeger, Olson, Rowbotham and Wheeler, virtually sure of positions and only two positions to fill.

The season's schedule, which closes November 24, with Ripon at Beloit follows:

Sept. 29.—De Kalb Normal at Beloit.
Oct. 6.—Northwestern University at Evanston.
Oct. 13.—Carroll at Beloit.
Oct. 20.—Lawrence at Appleton.
Oct. 27.—Lake Forest at Lake Forest.
Nov. 3.—Knox at Beloit (Homecoming.)
Nov. 10.—Cornell at Beloit.
Nov. 24.—Ripon at Beloit.

BLOCK OF OVER 9,000 SEATS SET ASIDE FOR OUTSIDERS AT CAMP RANDALL THIS SEASON

MADISON, Wis.—The public isn't to be neglected in the sale of tickets for University of Wisconsin football games to be played at the Camp Randall field this season, Paul Hunter, director of university ticket sales, has made it plain.

One solid block of over 9,000 seats has been set aside to fill the demand of those sport enthusiasts who are neither students, alumni of the university, faculty members or connected with the visiting team. Mail order sales on these tickets as well as on seats in all of the reserved sections are now going on, Mr. Hunter said.

Under arrangements for tickets sales to the Minnesota and Michigan games, the two conference contests to be fought out at Camp Randall, each applicant is entitled to two seats. Students are permitted but one ticket at a reduced student rate.

With 36,000 seats available for the two big games of the season at Madison, the athletic department has sought to allot tickets so that it can best meet the demands that always have exceeded the supply of seating space.

Students are allotted 7,800 seats in the west tier of the stadium, with alumni and "W" men to have the remaining seats in this half of the stands. Followers of the visiting team are given a large block of 5,000 seats in the east stands with the remaining space open to the public mail orders.

Mr. Hunter says that there is no reason why any person desirous of seeing the Wisconsin team in action at Camp Randall, should go without seats during the coming season, providing they make application early.

Ticket application blanks have been mailed to all alumni of the university, but others will have to write for applications and tickets, the director of ticket sales said.

Special precautions are being taken this year to prevent scalping of tickets for the Michigan and Minnesota games to be played at Madison.

CHAMPION JACK DEMPSEY IS READY TO BATTLE LUIS FIRPO BOUT IS BUT FIVE DAYS AWAY

SARATOGA SPRINGS N. Y.—By The Associated Press—With his championship match with Luis Angel Firpo five days away, Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight title-holder Monday declared he was ready to "do his stuff."

The tanned champion said he had worked as hard as he ever had trained since winning the championship four years ago, was in better shape than when he fought Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, July 4 and that if he did not decisively defeat Firpo it would not be because he was not ready.

Knows He's in Condition

"I can tell when I'm in shape better than anybody," he said. "I'm positive that I'm better than I was for Gibbons, and just as good as I was for Carpentier.

"Perhaps I'm not the same fighter I was when I whipped Willard, but that was four years ago, and a space of four years, especially on the wrong side of the calender, makes a difference. I'm older, but more experienced."

The title-holder boxed under the critical eye of Jimmy Deforrest, former trainer of both Dempsey and Firpo yesterday and the veteran conditioner was not profoundly impressed with what he saw. He said that in his judgment, Dempsey was not the fighter he was when he defeated Jess Willard, but despite that, still was good enough to conquer Firpo.

Deforrest said Dempsey probably would win within two rounds, but that if the contest went over six, the champion would be facing a highly dangerous situation. Dempsey, he said, however, was a 100 per cent better hitter than the big South American, could deliver a knockout blow with either hand and is so fast and shifty that he would be a difficult target.

Steps Six Rounds

Dempsey stepped six rounds Sunday but only four of them seriously.

His greatest demonstration was his speed. He moved with the shiftiness of a lightweight, but he missed repeatedly against Farmer Lodge and George Godfrey, his two heavyweight sparring partners. The workout was characterized by the boxing experts as the worst showing in ten days. The fierce aggressiveness was missing from his attack, and he was hit rather freely.

FIRPO ENTERS LAST THREE DAYS WORK BEFORE BIG SCRAP

Shows Improvement Some Times, then Awkward as Yoke of Oxen

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—By The Associated Press. Luis Angel Firpo Monday entered the last three days of his preparation for his world's heavyweight title match with Jack Dempsey. In his daily workouts he has been a puzzle. He has shown improvement in some things and at times has appeared as awkward as a yoke of oxen.

He has attempted to improve his boxing, he has worked hard trying to develop a left-hand punch. He has labored hours with defensive plans. He has battered his sparring partners on certain days, on others he has been easy to hit.

Some of his friends say he is not a boxer, and perhaps never will be, but that he will beat Dempsey. Firpo says nothing, but that he has confidence in his ability to take what Dempsey sends and stand under it is written on his countenance.

There is not fear of Dempsey in Firpo's heart. He is jolly and witty and good-natured.

Each day he works for a certain time at speed development, then he is told to work the left hand, then to try the right, and at his session with each sparring partner nearest the end he is permitted to have the satisfaction of hitting hard.

Firpo, judging by his workouts will be easy for Dempsey to hit. Yet, he has a peculiar style of defense that may fool even the champion. Some experts predict Dempsey will win in short order. Others expect Firpo to be knocked out inside of six to nine rounds. Some say that the Argentine if standing at the end of four rounds probably will win.

EVERYBODY, NOBODY BLAMED IN REPORT FOR HERRIN CRIME

Coal Commission in Report to Coolidge Refuses to Fix Final Responsibility

DECLARES THE MASSACRE MIGHT HAVE BEEN AVERTED

Commission Scores Mine Workers for Defending Crime

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States Coal commission in a report Sunday to President Coolidge on the causes of strikes declined to fix final responsibility for the Herrin massacre, but strongly criticized public officials for failing to prevent the killings, the Southern Illinois Coal company for defying the union and inviting mob violence, and subordinate officers and members of the United Mine Workers who defended the outrage.

A large portion of the report is devoted to the Herrin affair. It is evident that the commission gave considerable study to the facts, which it reviews at length, and then discusses them in relation to their bearing on labor conditions in the coal industry.

"It has been suggested that this was a communistic movement," said the commission referring to the Herrin massacre. "It is true that communists have made efforts to establish organizations in that county and that a few foreigners were induced to join; but there is no evidence that this had any relation to this lamentable and horrible occurrence. The voters are intensely partisan and divide along normal party lines with a negligible socialist vote.

"These homicides took place in the presence of innumerable witnesses. It cannot be true that the persons, or many of them, who engaged in the mob are not known to members of the citizens of that county. If those indicted, tried and acquitted were not guilty there must be many people in Williamson county who know who the guilty ones are. Yet, there has been no conviction for this breach of the criminal law nor is there the remotest possibility there ever will be one.

That Coroner's Jury Verdict

"The local point of view is well stated in the verdict of the coroner's jury: 'We, the jury, find from the evidence that the deaths of decedents were due to the acts, direct and indirect, of the officials of the Southern Illinois Coal company. We recommend that an investigation be conducted for the purpose of fixing the blame personally on individuals responsible.'

"There is no doubt that when the promoter of the Southern Illinois Coal company started to operate his mine in defiance of the union he was inviting mob violence and flirting with death; he knew it and prepared to meet it. The resentment was spontaneous and instantaneous. He challenged the supremacy of the union. Those in the mob undoubtedly believed that it was an attempt to return to old conditions before the mines had been unionized.

Troops Not Wanted

"There were, of course, fatal omissions of duty on the part of public officials, and neither the officials nor the public wanted troops to protect the operator in his union destroying operations. It might have been stopped by the sheriff, by the officers of the miners' union, by public sentiment, but all were for the union and all believed that an attempt was being made to destroy it.

"Although the commission finds that the tragedy might have been prevented, it also finds that the union officials and the public officials never anticipated that it would happen. They all believed that the non-union miners would be kicked out of the country and that this would end it. Then came into the equation an unknown quantity. Nobody can tell how much this had to do with the failure to punish the members of the mob. It was the storm of protest that swept through the public press of the country. It was the condemnation of the union, the union officials, and the public officers. It presented the common aspect of a stranger interfering in a family row.

Punishment Impossible

"The commission, of course, cannot say what might have been the result if public opinion had waited until the courts had either attempted or refused to discharge their duty. But the whole economic life of the county puts it beyond preadventure that when an indiscriminate assault on the union and the people of the county was made it rendered the punishment of anybody impossible in that county.

"This statement unfortunately cannot end here. Clothed with all the charitable excuses above set out, these furnish no jurisdiction for the brazen audacity with which subordinate officials and members of the United Mine Workers of America defended the crime and the criminals. That they were espousing the cause and defending the lawbreakers is further shown to the commission by the fact that they have since bought the mine where the tragedy occurred, and have paid therefor $729,000."

First thing you know it will be cool enough for sheik and sheba to sit in the same chair.

CLEVER NEW PICTURE AT THE RIVOLI

An unusually clever Paramount production, "The Silent Partner," with Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore and Robert Edeson—a very powerful drama—was given a highly successful presentation at the Rivoli theatre Sunday night. The picture is delightful in every respect.

Miss Joy, as Lisa Coburn finds that her husband is speculating in the stock market and tells him that as long as he wins she will stick by him, but when he loses he loses her.

Coburn is successful, and Lisa takes advantage of this by making him give her much money for expensive gowns, pearls and the like. But instead of spending the money, Lisa deposits it in a bank. Thus when the crash comes she is prepared.

CAREY AT THE CASINO

With a view of faraway snow, as it tipped the peaks of the distant Sierras, representing their closest approach to contact with winter these many moons during a sojourn in snowless southern California, members of the Harry Carey film organization indulged in rare sport recently while filming scenes for "The Miracle Baby," to be shown at the Casino theatre today and Tuesday.

The company spent a month in the scenically famous Truckee country, and in off moments indulged in long forgotten sports, bringing back a youth spent in a clime not so mild as the favored spot of the picture makers.

Snow balling, skiing, tobagganing sledding, sleigh biding, skating—all were taken advantage of, and Margaret Ladis, leading lady of the company, built a snowman, although she almost froze her hands during the process.

BEBAN AT THE MAJESTIC

"Heart" pictures are becoming more and more frequent but they will have to go far to surpass "The Sign of the Rose," in which George Beban stars. It is his first picture in a year or more. His reappearance makes us realize how much he has been missed. There is no star to compare with Beban in his own particular field, and few who rank higher in their own.

Again he is an Italian. It would be difficult to picture him otherwise. As Pietro Baletti, a laborer, who by chance is hired to bring a Christmas tree to a wealthy home, Beban is his familiar self—simple, awkward, eager. But with what compelling artistry does he achieve just this! Not by so much as a fraction of a second does he lose his grip on the audience. It is at the Majestic today and tomorrow.

GLORIA SWANSON COMING TO RIVOLI WEDNESDAY

Gloria Swanson's new Paramount picture, "Bluebeard's 8th Wife," which will be shown at the Rivoli theater next Wednesday is said to be one of the most powerful screen dramas produced by Paramount this season.

Miss Swanson has the role of Mona de Briac, a French girl whose parents are in financial difficulties. Their last straw is to marry Mona to a rich man, John Brandon, an American multi-millionaire, played by Huntley Gordon, is chosen as the intended husband. The marriage takes place and many thrilling incidents follow.

CASINO WEDNESDAY-THURSDAY

Have you ever wondered how your screen favorite looked in real life without make-up and without lighting? Haven't you wished and wished that you could go to Hollywood just for one little glimpse of your favorite as she walks—or perhaps rides—down Hollywood boulevard, just as you and I?

If you will go to the Casino theatre on Wednesday, and see "Mary of the Movies," you will not only see your favorite as she appears in real life, but you will see every other star you can possibly think of, because in "Mary of the Movies" there are forty famous stars—stars, mind you, and not leading players.

You will see the marble palaces occupied by such film celebrities as Rodolph Valentino, D. W. Griffith, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Sessue Hayakawa, Gloria Swanson Anita Stewart, Miss Dupont and a host of others.

FRANCISCO VILLA DIED RICH

MEXICO CITY.—Had not the bullets of unknown assassins cut short the life of Francisco Villa at Parrall on July 20, the former bandit leader bade fair to become one of the greatest landholders of the republic. In addition to the huge ranch at Canutillo, Durango, which the government ceded to Villa and his followers, another, rich property, the Pueblito hacienda, south of Ojinaga on the banks of the river Conchos in Chihuahua, had been added to his holdings by the government. Villa was also on the point of being given control of the San Isidro ranch, situated in the Jimenez district of Chihuahua, and the Carrena property, in northern Durango.

RENEWING STRENGTH AND CONVICTION IS VACATION RESULT

Rev. C. R. Shaver Tells of President Harding's Growth in Sermon

"Renewing strength is not merely a matter of vacation relaxation: but a matter of deepened conviction and broader horizons," said Reverend Claude Shaver, in his opening discourse at First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning. All the regular services at this church were resumed yesterday. Additional space has been added to the parlors and Bible school rooms. The exterior of the entire building is to be resurfaced and a new heating system has been installed. Continuing, he said in part:

"The late president Harding revealed many signs of this inward strength in the two years after he was lifted to the supreme place of responsibility by the American people. Before that, he had been but the usual senator type, thinking only in the narrower realms of personal ambition; and the politicians hoped to keep him within that zone of life. But being a man of faith and feeling more and more his responsibility to God in the large prerogatives of his exalted position, he grew from within, like the great trees of the western forests. In other words, men renew their strength when they open their lives to the Sovereign Lord of life, and begin to think with Him in planning their business, or their service to society.

Nation Is Taught

"This was what that old prophet taught a declining nation long ago, when he said, 'They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles. They shall walk and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint.' An aeroplane view of this world sets things in proper proportion and relationship. Mountains become mole hills and sky scrapers, are children's blocks. In like manner when we, in imagination, lift our vision to see this world as God sees it, our own petty problems assume more reasonable proportions especially when we recall that we are held responsible for our lives, even as President Harding was held responsible. New strength comes to the young mother who looks for the first time into the face of her first duties and realizes the possibilities of born child. She feels the call of home motherhood. In her prayer she waits upon God that she may serve more fully; and new strength comes.

"Waiting upon God is a fine act of reverence and introspection. A most successful business man in another city writes that the secret of his enlarged activities is a daily ten minute 'inventory of himself' in the quietness of his office. There he recognizes his mistakes and reconsiders his responsibilities. In a much higher sense does the reverent soul 'take inventory with himself' as he abides in the sanctuary in an atmosphere of religious thought and devotion. Here he is not alone, but is establishing contact with the great source of life and strength who renewed the virility of Washington and of Lincoln in these trying days when they seemed often to reach the limit of their endurance.

"Enlarged vision, unswerving perseverance, and a balanced poise of spirit are needed in these days of business pressure and social distraction. Here is where religion ministers to the life of the world, as no vacation experience can minister. In the old days of chivalry a suitor was said to 'wait upon his lady.' Which gracious courtesy helps us to understand this finer art of waiting upon God. It meant refined regard, communion in nobler thoughts, and discussion of heroic plans. Such intercourse, lifted into Sabbath association, is expressed by an old hymn.

ANNOUNCE CHANGES IN STATE HEALTH NURSING SERVICE

MADISON, Wis.—The public health nursing service in several cities and counties will undergo changes, the state board of health announced Monday. Two changes in the public health nursing staff of the state board of health are also reported.

Miss Bessie Crandall, Milton, Wis., formerly with the child hygiene division of the Michigan department of health, has assumed duties as maternity and infant health center nurse for the district comprising Dane, Rock, Green and Grant counties, with headquarters at Milton. Miss Mary Dunwiddie has resigned as state supervising nurse to become instructor with the Central School of Nursing at Milwaukee.

Miss Ethelyn Town, graduate of Milwaukee hospitals and of a four months' course in public health nursing at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, becomes county nurse of Ozaukee county.

Miss Marie Klein, formerly school nurse of Ripon until a year ago, has returned to fill the same post.

MEXICO MAY MODIFY LAWS ON EXPULSION OF FOREIGNERS

MEXICO CITY.—Foreigners in Mexico view with mixed feelings the proposal of a group of congressmen to reform Article 33 of the constitution. Being "thirty-threed," the popular way of expressing the operation of said article, means being expelled without hearing or trial from Mexico on orders from the president as "a pernicious foreigner."

Proposals for reform include the granting of a hearing to candidates for the 33d degree; but, in case of conviction, the serving of the corresponding sentence should the offense charged be of a civil or criminal nature, and then expulsion. At present, under the article, a few days imprisonment, "incomunicado," before expulsion, is the only extra punishment inflicted.

This climate does not always agree with the calendar.

AUTO OVERTURNS THREE MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPES

Three men escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the road a short distance east of Bluff Siding. Mike Filek of Winona suffered a bruised shoulder and chest and Fred Loudon, salesman, who lives at Eau Claire, Wis., driver of the car, escaped uninjured.

Owen Barrett, also of Eau Claire, although apparently unhurt, was in a dazed condition after the accident, police who accompanied the ambulance said, and was found walking down the road toward Marshland when they arrived. He declared he was unable to remember anything about how the accident happened and complained of pains in his head, police said.

Those planning all along to get back to work this fall will postpone it until winter.

CYLINDER REGRINDING
GRIND YOUR CYLINDER—WHY?

Because you know that when an automobile comes from the maker the engine has true, ROUND CYLINDERS. You also know that as soon as you start to run your ENGINE wear takes place in the CYLINDER. Unfortunately the wear is not UNIFORM, and is only a question of time when your CYLINDERS are out of round and taper. Your engine pumps oil, fouls plugs, develops a knock or piston slap or consumes oil and gasoline out of proportion to the service rendered. Therefore you cannot correct the error simply by changing pistons and rings. To overcome these troubles your CYLINDERS must be REGROUND and fitted with oversize pistons and rings. Then you will have an ENGINE the same as what you got from the maker.

FORD SPECIAL—Ford cylinders reground and fitted with oversize pistons, wrist pins, bushings and rings, complete, $16.00.

All work guaranteed.
Prices reasonable.

TRI-STATES TAKE CHAMPIONSHIP TILT FROM KOLBO SHOES

The Tri-State baseball club Sunday won the minor championship of the city of La Crosse by defeating the Kolbo Shoes, 4 to 3, in the final game of the series.

All three games of the series have been won by one score. Affeldt for Kolbos, and Smevog for the Tri-States, opposed each other on the mound.

MRS. WILLIAMS BACK FROM G. A. R. MEET

Mrs. Martha Williams of this city, local representative at the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Milwaukee, returned to the city Sunday. The encampment, according to Mrs. Williams, was the biggest and best the G. A. R. ever has had. New officers were elected and a great deal of business was taken care of. Among the interesting amendments passed was one permitting the Sons of Veterans to participate in meeting of the G. A. R. posts, although they will not be allowed to vote, Mrs. Williams stated.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK—Conflicting price movements took place at the opening of Monday's stock market. United States Steel, Baldwin and United States Rubber opened fractionally lower. Jones Brothers' Tea, which was heavy last week, advanced three points and International Telephone one. Rails were mixed.

Prices stiffened somewhat in the later dealings with the rails showing the most consistent strength. Gains of a point or more were recorded by Reynolds Spring, Vanadium and American Tobacco, while Producers and Refiners and American Agricultural Chemical preferred each dropped about 1½. Foreign exchanges opened irregular.

The closing was firm. Sales approximated 600,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Ill.—With no aggressive selling pressure noticeable in the wheat market here, prices took a moderate upturn Monday during the early dealings. Firmness of Liverpool quotations counted as a bullish factor. Trade was light, and the market easily influenced. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to ⅜c higher with December $1.06⅜ to $1.06⅝ and May $1.11⅛ to $1.11¼, were followed by a slight sag, and then by gains all around.

Subsequently weakness of prices in the northwest had a bearish effect on deferred deliveries and so, too, did an increase of the United States visible supply total. The close was steady at ⅛ to ¼c net decline to ⅜c advance, December $1.06 to $1.06⅛ and May $1.11⅛ to ¼ to $1.11¼.

Cool weather, unfavorable for maturing the corn crop, gave firmness to corn and oats. After opening at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance, December 68⅛ to 68¼c, the corn market showed a little rise all around.

In the last part of the day, corn receded with wheat. The close was steady, ½c net lower to ⅛c gain, December 68⅛c.

Oats started at ⅛c off to ⅛c gain, December 39⅜c and later averaged a trifle above Saturday's finish.

Higher quotations on hogs helped to steady the provision market.

ALL VOCATIONAL CLASSES TO OPEN OCTOBER EIGHTH

Supervisor Coleman Calls Attention to New Hours of Labor for Women

The Board of Industrial Education, through its director, announces that all evening school classes in the city of La Crosse will begin work during the week beginning Monday, October 8. Every person who wishes to enroll in an evening school class, whether the class be held at the high school, Logan Junior high or the vocational school will be required to enroll at the vocational school office between 7 and 10 p. m. on either October 1, 2, or 3. Absolutely no enrollments will be received at any other place or at any other time.

Last year, 1,776 people took advantage of the opportunities offered through evening school classes. Many persons did not enroll during the enrollment period, consequently about 700 were not able to gain admission into classes.

This year classes will be offered in any subject for which 10 or more people make request. More complete information concerning the evening school schedule will be published in the Tribune at a later date.

Following are the new laws regarding hours of labor for women:

Chapter 117, Laws of 1923

1728—2m.1. No female shall be employed or be permitted to work in any hotel

(a) At day work, more than ten hours in any one day, or more than fifty-five hours in any one week;

(b) At night work, more than nine hours in any one day, or more than fifty-four hours in any one week.

2. For the purpose of this section night work is defined as a period of employment which in whole or in part falls between 9 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m. of the day following.

3. The powers granted, imposed and conferred upon the industrial commission by the provisions of section 1728—2 of the statures shall not apply to the hours of employment fixed under this section.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon passage and publication.

Mr. Coleman wishes to call the attention of local employers to the necessity of a rigid enforcement of these new rulings. The vocational school office will be pleased at any time to furnish information concerning laws governing the employment of women and child labor.

There has been considerable confusion concerning the new rules governing the employment of women, consequently John B. Coleman, local director of vocational education, quotes the following new laws which became effective September 1:

Chapter 185, Laws of 1923

Section 1. The "schedule" of section 1728—2 of the statutes is amended to read: (Section 1728—2) (Schedule) at day work, more than . . . nine hours in any one day, or more than . . . fifty hours in any one week. Provided that during emergency periods of not to exceed four weeks in any calendar year any female may be employed for not to exceed ten hours in any one day and not more than fifty-five hours in any one week, such excess time to be paid for at the rate of one and one-half time the regular rates.

At night work, more than eight hours in any one night, or more than forty-eight hours in any one week.

Day work is work done between 6 o'clock a. m. and 8 o'clock p. m. of the same day; provided that employment not more than one night in the week after 8 o'clock p. m. shall not be considered night work.

Night work is work done between 8 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m. of the following day.

Less than one hour during each day or night for dinner or other meals.

Section 2. This act shall take effect on September 1, 1923.

RHINELANDER COUNCIL BANISHES POPLAR TREES

An ordinance was also passed prohibiting the planning of poplar trees here. All poplar trees now standing must be removed within six months.

BUZZARD MEETS ALL TRAINS AND ROUSES TOWN'S IRE

SARANAP, Calif.—Incensed because of the actions of an unidentified buzzard, which insists on meeting all trains, a delegation of citizens has started a drive to remove the volunteer reception committee on the ground that it was a bad "od" for the town. The buzzard appears about train time, circles several times and comes to roost on a fence rail near the railroad track. Saranap boosters charge that the buzzard has been trained to "do his stuff" by a rival town, jealous of Sanarap's growth during the last year.

SOLDIER PATIENT IS HELD ON DRUG CHARGE

CHICAGO, Ill.—Herman Root, a patient at the Edward Hines, Jr., Memorial hospital for world war veterans, was arrested Saturday charged with having narcotic drugs in his possesion, federal agents suspecting that he may have knowledge of the manner in which William Reingold, of Wausau, Wis., obtained drugs to which use his death at the hospital was attributed Friday. UNVEILING A MYSTERY; LAYMEN DISCOVER WE SEE WITH LIGHT

BY H. CLAY EVENSON

THERE is perhaps no article in common use contributing so much to the comfort, efficiency and well being of mankind, that is so imperfectly understood by the laity as the eye glass. It is quite true that those eye defects which can truly be corrected by properly prescribed opthalmic lenses (eye glass lenses), are conditions which even to the most intelligent people are shrouded in mystery.

Will glasses cure my eyes? Will lenses cure astigmatism? Such questions as these, so frequently asked especially by those whose eye defects result in headache, intolerance of light, and other of the many symptoms of uncomfortable vision, give ample evidence that a better understanding of the subject by the laymen would be well worth while.

It is not strange that optics of the eye is not generally comprehended, nor that the correcting qualities of a piece of glass are obscure, not to say even mystical.

* * * *

It is always in an environment of misunderstanding that the charlatan and fakir flourish. Even legitimate professions requiring specialized knowledge and qualifications had this condition to combat. This has been especially true of optometry. The law making bodies of every state in the union recognizing this evil have enacted laws designated to protect the public against the incompetent and unscrupulous. These laws have been a great benefit to the laymen in so far as laws are able to function.

Legal process, however, never has and never will be able to enforce the Golden Rule, nor create a conscientious desire to attain the highest ideals of service and responsibility.

* * * *

The importance of careful adjustment of glasses to the face is one phase of optical service that cannot be over-emphasized or divided. Proper design not only determines the efficiency of the lenses, but the appearance and the comfort with which the finished glasses are worn. Mechanical exactness and the exercise of artistic sense contribute also to make the finished product a work of scientific skill and good craftmanship as well. A division of optical service means a division of responsibility and quite likely, less satisfactory results. For instance your eyes are examined by one who spends part of his time in practicing medicine, or selling watches, drugs or ice cream, and the grinding of the lenses and the adjustment of the frame or mountings for the glasses is left to some boy or girl in a wholesale house, where the lenses are ground on a wholesale basis, it would be quite natural, that the divided responsibility removes your chance of getting accuracy, that our eyes so badly need.

* * * *

The scientific adaptation of glasses primarily depends on a knowledge of optical science; the study of light and the laws which govern its action. As in all branches of physics, mathematics also play an important part. Ophthalmic (eye glass) lenses correct optical errors of the eye. These errors are not diseased conditions. To measure the optical defects (called refractive errors) is the first step in the optical service. The measurements are derived by different scientific methods, each being a check on the other.

Under no conditions should glasses be accepted as a treatment for any disease of the eyes, else the laws and courts would deny the optometrist the right to examine your eyes and fit them to glasses. Because some physicians take time, from their medical practice, to fit glasses, does not indicate that the physicians are practicing medicine with the glasses. Too often the making of the glasses is left to a boy or girl in a wholesale house, who has only a merchantile interest in the welfare of the eyes. Errors are bound to creep in, because of the divided interest.

* * * *

The eye is primarily a lens system which refracts (bends) light so that all the world about us is focused in marvelous, though minute pictures, on the retina, the living screen of life.

You can tell a bundle of Winthrops by the distinctive trade mark. You can pick out a single Winthrop by its shape and quality.

It is the only tapered asphalt shingle—shaped like the attractive old time wood shingle.

The extra heavy coats of everlasting asphalt that make up the thick butt hold the shingle snug against the roof and double the wearing thickness with but little increase in the total weight of the roof or its cost.

See these shingles—in attractive crushed slate surfaces of tile red, sea green or blue black—at your local lumber yard. If you wish we will send sample and literature direct to you. Please write Dept. W.
